Wins Acclamation at Convention

Hon. Solon Low Elected Leader Of National Social Credit Assn.

TORONTO, April 6.—(CP)—Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer of Alberta, today was elected national leader and president of the Social Credit Association of Canada at the organization's national convention here.

J. E. Gregoire of Quebec was elected vice-president by acclamation when the only other nominee, M. J. Haver of Saskatoon, withdrew his nomination. Mr. Gregoire is a lecturer at Laval university and a former mayor of Quebec.

Mr. Low's election came by acclamation when the only other candidate—Major A. H. Jukes of Saanichton, B.C.—announced to the convention" that he was withdrawing his nomination."

The election came on the third day of the three-day national Social Credit convention which yesterday voted to establish a Dominion-wide political party to be called the National Social Credit Association.

A native of Cardston, Alta., Mr. Low was born Jan. 8, 1900, and was educated there and at Calgary Normal school, the University of Alberta and the University of Southern California.

A school principal, he entered politics in 1935 when he was elected to the Alberta legislature for Warner riding and he entered the cabinet of the late William Aberhart in 1937. Defeated in Warner in the general election of 1940 he ran in a by-election for the Vegreville constituency which he represents.

A Latter Day Saint in religion, Mr. Low's home address now is Edmonton, Alta. He was married in 1922 to the former Alice Litchfield of Raymond, Alta. They have one son and three daughters.

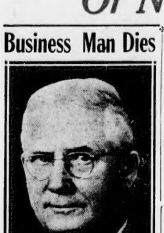

HOLDS TWO PORTFOLIOS

In addition to his portfolio as provincial treasurer, Mr. Low also is minister of education.

Mr. Low said following his election that his name had been mentioned for the office only last night. He would have to consult with Premier Ernest Manning and other Alberta cabinet members to see whether his new office would make it necessary to give up any of his provincial duties.

Allow Ten Pounds Sugar For Canning

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—The Prices Board announced last night that in the forthcoming canning season each consumer may obtain an allotment of 10 pounds for canning purposes.

The board said the first five "F" coupons in ration book No. 3, each good for one pound of sugar, will become valid May 25, and the second five valid July 6.

The 1943 canning sugar allotment — approximately the same, but last year consumers had to apply direct to their local ration board for it, and depended upon the supply available, some received more and some less than the 10-pound allowance.

The present ration is a blanket allowance of 10 pounds to each consumer. Householders may convert the "F" coupons into preserve coupons at local ration board offices if they prefer to buy preserves rather than make them.

The soldier was shot and killed while traversing a course on which live ammunition is used to simulate actual battle conditions. The casualty was the first accident of any kind to be recorded during such operations. Thousands of soldiers have been trained on the course. Inquiry into the accident was begun at Dundurn Thursday.

CBC Denounced For Excluding S.C. From Air

TORONTO, April 6. — (CP) — Action of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in excluding "the Social Credit viewpoint from national broadcasts" was denounced as unfair and inexcusable by delegates at the national Social Credit convention here yesterday.

The convention, in a resolution, urged the CBC board of governors to review its decision and allow the Social Credit movement free air time as is granted Liberal, Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. speakers under regulations recently announced.

DISGRACEFUL EPISODE

N. B. James, M.L.A. of Edmonton said the CBC regulation was "one of the most disgraceful episodes in Canadian history.

"It shows the trend in officialdom in regard to free speech. It is a dangerous indication of what is going on in official Canada today to deprive people of free speech."

The three older political parties—"all reactionary, all fascist"—were giving speeches over the CBC free.

Rev. E. G. Hansell, New Democracy member of parliament for Macleod, Alta., said the Social Credit forces of Canada were "nosed out" of free radio time.

"All sorts of speeches, suggestions and educational broadcasts are coming over the air that all fit

NEW DELHI, April 6.—Japanese troops were reported striking into the main British defences on the Manipur road north of Imphal today, while Allied forces in northcentral Burma gained further ground in their two-pronged drive on Myitkyina and destroyed 33 to 36 enemy planes caught aground on a jungle airfield.

A communique from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's southeast Asia headquarters said Japanese units straddling the Manipur road between Imphal and Kohima, 60 miles to the north, "continue to exert pressure" on the British lines.

It was indicated that at least part of the invading column had turned south on the highway and a large-scale battle for Imphal may be imminent.

Some advanced Japanese elements were ambushed and dispersed by British patrols along the highway, the communique said, and a similar road block caught other enemy troops attempting to move up the road south of Imphal.

Low, provincial treasurer and minister of education of Alberta, today was elected national leader and president of the Social Credit Association of Canada at the organization's convention in Toronto. Aussie Scores For "Big Kill" With City Unit

AN R.C.A.F. FIGHTER BASE IN BRITAIN, April 6.—(CP)—Flt. Lt. Charlie Schere, an Australian Mosquito pilot who was transferred to important ground duties a month ago, returned to the R.C.A.F. City of Edmonton Squadron yesterday for "just one more trip" over France and it paid big dividends.

In a foray over Montsoreau, Yam and Lyons in southern France he shot down two Nazi aircraft and left three others on the ground a mass of blazing wreckage to boost his "bag" to 12½ planes and become the leading intruder ace in Britain.

The peaceful sheep rancher, who had FO. W. Stewart of Toronto as a pick-up observer yesterday, compiled this total of destruction in his last eight trips after 26 uneventful operations. Stewart has been on 24 other intruder trips but this was his first participation in a "kill."

G. G. McGeer's Son Reported Missing On Air Operations

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—Sgt. Michael McGeer, 20-year-old R.C.A.F. air-gunner and son of G. G. McGeer, Liberal member of parliament for Vancouver-Barrard, has been reported missing on active service after air operations overseas, it was learned here today.

Sgt. McGeer was born in Vancouver and educated in private schools there before his enlistment in the R.C.A.F.

In Near Future

Reorganization Alberta Cabinet Is Forecast Here

With the election of Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer and minister of education, to the post of leader of the Social Credit Association of Canada in Toronto, Thursday, observers here believe a shuffle of Premier Ernest Manning's provincial cabinet is imminent.

It is felt that with the heavy duties of national Social Credit party leader, Mr. Low will not wish to remain in the government, and will give up his seat in the legislature in order to devote full time to organizing the Social Credit movement across the Dominion, in preparation for the next general election.

The new national leader will in all probability seek election to the House of Commons in the next Dominion voting. In that case, he may run in the Lethbridge riding, where it has been suggested that J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit M.P. since 1935, may not run again, because of ill-health.

In the event of Mr. Low's resignation from the Legislature, a by-election would be necessary in the Vegreville constituency to fill the vacant seat. It is required under the Alberta Election Act that this be done within 180 days of the seat becoming vacant. With a provincial general election expected in Alberta in the spring of 1945 at the latest, this by-election might be deferred.

Political quarters here are speculating on the changes that would be made in the cabinet, if Mr. Low resigned his portfolios.

SIZE OF CABINET

In view of the fact that the present cabinet, consisting of nine members, is the largest Alberta has ever had, it is considered possible that Premier Manning would not add another minister to it, but would re-distribute portfolios among the eight remaining members.

Mentioned as a likely successor to Mr. Low as minister of education

OMAHA, Neb., April 6.—His "One World" crumbled by an overwhelming defeat in the Wisconsin primary election Tuesday, Wendell L. Willkie headed east today after a dramatic withdrawal from the race for the Republican presidential nomination last night.

The 1940 nominee, who polled more than 20,000,000 votes when he ran against President Roosevelt four years ago, made his exit at the conclusion of a 45-minute speech in which he bitterly attacked the administration's foreign policy.

"It is obvious now that I cannot be nominated," he said, and with he promise to continue to work for these principles and policies for which I have fought during the last four years in the towel.

INFORMED NEWSMEN

Only the reporters in the audience of 4,000 persons knew that Willkie was to make his farewell address as he walked onto the stage of the Omaha city auditorium. He had summoned them to his hotel room yesterday afternoon at four o'clock and casually told them of his decision.

Plot Reported Kidnap McLean

WINDSOR, Ont., April 6.—(CP)—E. C. Awrey, crown attorney, said today that Windsor police were in possession of definite information that an attempt might be made to kidnap Harry McLean, wealthy Merrickville, Ont., construction man during his visit to Windsor last week.

Commenting on criticism expressed at a city council meeting of the police department for assigning men to guard McLean, Awrey said: "I was consulted before policemen were assigned to guard Mr. McLean. I approved of their action. . . .

He added that police knew of the presence of persons in the hotel in which McLean stayed who they felt were there for the purpose of kidnapping him.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, April 6—American Liberator bombers, carrying the weight of an Allied offensive to smash Japan's air power on New Guinea, destroyed 13 enemy planes along the north coast in a 206-ton raid on Wewak, it was announced today.

While the four-engined bombers from Gen. George C. Kenney's Fifth Air Force were attacking the battered base Tuesday, Australian troops, advancing through the Mindjim valley, moved to within nine miles of Bogadjim, 216 miles south of Wewak, after passing through Kwata where they seized a motor park and 30 trucks.

The New Guinea operations were part of widespread Allied attacks which included the 17th raid of the war on Wake Island, 600 miles northeast of Eniwetok in the Marshalls, the seventh assault in four days on Ponape, 443 miles east of Truk in the Carolines, and new strikes at four Japanese bases in the Marshalls.

Heavy Artillery Action in Italy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, April 6.—Violent artillery duels have broken out on both flanks of the main 5th Army front in southern Italy, a communique said today, as official reports revealed a sudden increase in German troops and supply movements around Cassino.

The roar of Allied and German cannonading rose to a furious pitch in the hills around Cassino and on the coastal sector 16 miles to the west as both sides sent hundreds of shells into the opposing battle lines.

Allied shellfire "particularly was heavy on the Cassino sector, and headquarters spokesmen said the 5th Army gunners "successfully engaged" big German motor columns and targets inside the town.

There was no official explanation for the new activity in the German lines, but the reference to large-scale transport movements suggested the Nazis might have been moving in troops and equipment for a counter-thrust against the Allied positions in and around the town.

LONDON, April 6.— Liberators attacked the French invasion coast for the second straight day today and Berlin reported bombers over southeast Germany, indicating a two-way assault by American heavy planes striking from Britain and Italy.

The Nazis said American heavy bombers and their strong fighter escort fought air battles with German defence planes over northern Yugoslavia in the areas of Zagreb and the border town of Maribor (Marburg).

Heavy bombers of the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. put the Allied offensive back on a full time basis last night with a destructive blow at German aircraft repair plants at Toulouse in southern France near the Spanish frontier.

MOSCOW, April 6.—Russian mobile forces converged from three directions over the immediate approaches of Odessa today, clearing the way for storming the biggest Soviet city still in Nazi hands and bringing the German disaster in the Ukraine to a quick end.

Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's vanguard was within artillery range of Odessa to the north, northeast and east—distances of 10 miles or less.

The Red army held out for two months under siege in the Black Sea port in 1941.

Britain Halts 'Phone Service To All Ireland

By JOSPH W. GRIGG
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

LONDON, April 6.—British government authorities suspended telephone service to all Ireland effective at midnight last night as the latest of a series of unprecedented security measures designed to prevent leakage to Axis ears of vital information incident to preparation for the opening of the western front.

At the same time the war department extended prohibited areas to new key areas in England, Wales and Scotland.

Telegraph service to Ireland will be maintained, but it will be subject to a sharply intensified censorship at the British end of the only wires which extend to northern Ireland and Eire.

CLIMAX OF MEASURES

Announcement by Capt. Harry F. C. Crookshank, postmaster general, of the suspension of telephone service to both northern Ireland and Eire climaxed the following recent measures held necessary to safeguard the lives of the British, American, Canadian and United Nations soldiers poised for the invasion of hitherto Europe:

1—Rigid restriction of travel to all Ireland.

2—The calling in by censors of all phone calls of British soldiers.

3—The closure March 31 of a 10-mile strip of the British coast extending from Land's End, at the western tip of the English channel facing the Brest peninsula, to the Wash, on the east coast opposite the Frisian islands which fringe the Netherlands and German coasts.

4—The closure by the Admiralty of the Bay of Biscay and the waters extending from the Spanish coast to Eire.

5—The banning for operational reasons of all civil air mail to Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, Gibraltar, Tangier, French and Spanish Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Corsica, Maderia, the Canary Islands, the Cape Verde Islands and the mid-Atlantic Azores.

MORE ARE TO COME

These measures—and more are to come, British leaders have made it plain—were taken against a background which included ostentatious inspections of the invasion coast by German military overlords and the intense Allied aerial hammering at the French invasion coast and targets extending far into Germany.

Not long after this drastic new measure was announced the war office announced its own new precautionary measures.

The effect of the order was to close about two-thirds of the British coast line in addition to areas on both the east and west coasts of Scotland, and the southern coast of Wales facing the Bristol Channel.

1—The coastal strip from Hornsea in Yorkshire to Land's End, including Isle of Wight. This extended the recent closure of 700 miles of coast line facing France.

2—The whole south coast of Wales facing the Bristol Channel.

3—The northeast coast of Scotland from Caithness to the Firth of Forth, including the Tay and Forth River estuaries.

CLOSE CLYDE AREA

4—The Clyde area of western Scotland opposite the northern channel facing northern Ireland.

In all these areas persons over 16 years must carry identity cards and use of binoculars, telescopes and cameras is restricted.

A second war office order tightened restrictions already imposed on other areas.

Prince Will Act For Italian King

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

NAPLES, April 6. — (AP) — Crown Prince Humbert said in an interview last night that he is prepared to act as deputy for his father Victor Emmanuel, as king, thereby clearing the way for a coalition war government of all the major Italian political parties.

Humbert, Prince of Piedmont, confirmed reports of the king's proposal a fortnight ago to hand over his powers to his son as his lieutenant.

"The king is old and ready to retire," the prince said. "He has had a full life."

His father had intended to retire when the Allied armies reached Rome and appoint him as his lieutenant to exercise the prerogatives of the crown, Humbert said. Whether the king might act sooner he was unable to say.

Makes Inquiry

Doctor Says Argentine Quints Are "Authentic"

BUENOS AIRES, April 6.—(AP)—The Dionnes of Callander, Ont., appeared today to have an authentic set of rivals for quintuplets honors.

Dr. Jose Alejandro Beruti has informed the Argentine Medical Association that after a careful investigation he saw no reason to doubt that Senora Franco Diligenti of Buenos Aires bore quintuplets last July 15—two boys and three girls.

Dr. Beruti, head of the obstrical department of the University of Buenos Aires School of Medicine and first recognized medical authority to report on the case, said skepticism which greeted first newspaper announcement of the births apparently was unwarranted by the data he had uncovered.

The doctor said that according to his inquiry Senora Diligenti was attended only by a midwife in whose home the births occurred. He said the first child was born at 9 a.m., the second 10 minutes later, the third 15 minutes after the second, the fourth at 10:05 and the last at 11 a.m.

BELIEVED PREMATURE

The total weight of the infants at birth, Dr. Beruti said, was approximately 14 pounds while at eight months the total had increased to nearly 26 pounds. The doctor expressed the belief the infants were born prematurely.

His inquiry, he said, showed a number of multiple births in the mother's family, an aunt having borne triplets and twins, a sister twins, and a sister-in-law two sets of twins.

Beruti told his colleagues that "the legal, moral or other intimate aspects of" the case were omitted from the report because they are extraneous to the subject from a medical standpoint."

is Hon. A. J. Hooke, provincial secretary, who is a former high school principal.

The treasurer's portfolio has been suggested for Mr. Manning himself. A keen student of economics, he has spoken many times at the last session of the Legislature on the province's financial problems.

OTHERS MENTIONED

Others mentioned for the treasurer's post are Mr. Hooke, who, as former chairman of the Social Credit Board, has intensively studied economics.

If the premier took the treasurer's post, he would probably drop his ministry of trade and industry, in deference to wishes of M.L.A.'s who feel that two portfolios are too heavy a burden for the president of the executive council.

The trade and industry portfolio could be taken by Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, who is thoroughly conversant with the industrial picture of the province, and has had many contacts with prominent labor, through the mines branch.

Another possible minister of trade and industry is Mr. Hooke, who as chairman of the Social Credit board worked under the trade and industry department.

TALK OF ELECTION

Some quarters take the view that a provincial general election may be held late this year, in view of the fact that a national convention has been called, and a national Social Credit leader chosen. The government has emphatically denied this possibility exists, stating that nominating conventions in provincial constituencies are merely preliminaries to the election next spring.

The next nominating conventions to be called are for Edmonton itself, when Social Credit supporters will name both Dominion and provincial candidates. The city sends two members to the house of commons, and five to the legislative assembly.

Dental Society In Regular Meet

More than 50 members and guests attended the regular monthly dinner meeting of the Edmonton Dental Society at the Macdonald hotel Tuesday evening.

Dr. W. Scott Hamilton, director of the University of Alberta school of dentistry assisted by Dr. H. E. Rawlinson of the department of anatomy, outlined the newer knowledge of oral surgery. Dr. Hamilton has returned from a meeting of the American Association of Dental Schools at Chicago and an intensive course in Oral surgery at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Dr. H. A. Gilchrist of the department of prosthetic dentistry briefly outlined the McGrane technic of denture construction. Dr. Gilchrist recently returned from the annual midwinter clinic of the Chicago Dental Society and the annual session of the Minnesota State Dental Association.

A nominating committee consisting of Dr. T. F. MacDonald, Dr. M. M. Dunsworth, Dr. J. B. Carmichael, and an auditing committee of Dr. S. D. Fraser, Dr. G. Y. Barnett, and Dr. G. H. Brown were appointed by the chairman Dr. W. E. Webber.

been mentioned as possible national leaders, were not nominated. It was understood they made clear their present duties in the commons required all their time. They were John H. Blackmore, member for Lethbridge; Rev. E. G. Hansell, Macleod, and Victor Quelch, Acadia.

With election on a purely Social Credit organization, delegates said it was probable that the 10 members of parliament would drop the party name of New Democracy they assumed in 1940 and hold their seats as Social Crediters.

QUEBEC SUPPORT

Paul Prince of Winnipeg said when nominations for the leader were received that he believed the convention proposed to place too great a load on any leader to be elected and he left the room without a vote. He then left the convention hall.

Yesterday spokesmen for the Quebec delegation said they did not think the time ripe for political action on a Dominion-wide basis and would devote some time on educational activity. Later, they supported establishment of the Social Credit organization on the understanding that they were not committed to political action except where thought warranted.

Today, Armand Turpin of Hull, Que., spoke in support of Mr. Low's nomination. He thought it would be unjust to Alberta that the new leader should be chosen from that province which had done so much for Social Credit.

REPORTS "INCORRECT"

Louis Even of Montreal said some headings on reports of the convention in the newspapers by they indicated the Quebec delegation had threatened to walk out.

"They said a Quebec bloc was against Low as leader and had threatened to walk out," he continued.

"We never threatened to walk out. We have never stood against political action and we are anxious to run candidates in every constituency where it is deemed wise to make the attempt."

In his speech, Mr. Low said he had come to the convention seeking nothing. He would apply to the leadership the lessons he had learned during his years in and out of the financial affairs of Alberta and 15 years as a school teacher and principal.

He knew the need of education and would seek to inform all Canadians about Social Credit, to have it established in the Dominion.

HEAVY TASK AHEAD

"I know the bitterness of campaigns and I have no illusions of what the next few days may have in store for us," he continued.

"I have no fears if we follow the truth, for the only dynamite of value today is the dynamite of a sound idea. Most people know something is very wrong today and they suspect that this has something to do with money. All they need is effective leadership from coast to coast and they'll go places."

After his speech of acceptance in English, he spoke briefly in French.

The convention approved a resolution making "vehement protest" to radio stations CKHC, Montreal and CKCH, Hull, Que., "against discriminatory action of those stations" on broadcasts by Social Crediters in Quebec.

Two Nazi Sailors Escape in East

THURSO, Que., April 6.—(CP)—Two German sailors, members of the crew of the German cargo carrier Weser, captured by H.M.C.S. Prince Robert in the Pacific in 1940, escaped yesterday from a prison machine company's lumber camp at this settlement 45 miles east of Ottawa by separating themselves from a wood-cutting party with which they were working.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police identified the men as Kurth Barth, 21, and Karl Meiner, 23. As the Weser was not a combatant ship, the men were treated as interness, not prisoners of war.

Police Chief Amable Raby of nearby Buckingham, Que., said he understood Barth and Meiner were equipped with compasses and maps of the district. At the time of their escape the men were under guard of the Veterans' Guard of Canada.

Howe Says Canada Need Have No Fear Of Unemployment

FORT WILLIAM, April 6.—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe told executives of the Fort William Liberal Association yesterday that Canada need have no fear of unemployment for years after the war.

Mr. Howe said there would be five years of civilian shortages to be made up; many houses to build; endless demands curbed by war to be met, and Europe to repair and rehabilitate. All would create an enormous demand for labor.

He said the Dominion government had blueprints ready for peace to be made effective as soon as the war ended.

Coal Mining In This Area Is Under Review

trade and commerce and member of parliament for Edmonton West, and Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, member of parliament for Edmonton East. No reply has been received from either on the representations made by Mayor Fry.

Operators said Thursday that a survey of mines revealed that there was less than 150 tons of coal above ground, and that this supply would be exhausted before the end of this week.

The University of Alberta, since mining operations ceased, has been ordering coal from companies operating on the Coal Branch, and other large users of coal in the city will soon have to find alternative supply sources.

The Edmonton public school board has sufficient coal on hand to keep the school in operation for from two to three weeks, depending on the severity of the weather.

At the power plant there is a coal pile estimated at 18,000 tons, and arrangements have been made to get supplies from sources outside the Edmonton field.

troops pushing down behind the Odessa pocket.

Farther northwest, the battle of encirclement against 15 German divisions trapped in the Scala area was reported drawing rapidly to a conclusion.

BITTER STRUGGLE

Reports were skimpy from Tarnopol, pre-war Polish rail junction where one of the bitterest struggles of the war was on. Russian assault forces were battling forward street by street and house by house.

Malinovsky's forces, some of them veterans of Stalingrad, virtually sealed the fate of the garrison yesterday by cutting both the highway and railway running from Odessa to Chisinau in Bessarabia and pushing on another three miles to the head of trackless swamps that extend down to the Dniester lagoon.

The only land escape route remaining in German hands was a single-track coastal railway that hurdles the five-mile-wide Dniester lagoon by ferry. Only a trickle of Germans could escape from Odessa by this route.

MANY HAVE FLED

A month ago, the remnants of the German 6th and 8th armies remaining in the Odessa pocket were estimated unofficially at more than 100,000, but tens of thousands of the enemy since have fled westward to Rumania as the Russians converged on the port.

The Russians cut the Odessa-Chisinau railway with the capture of Razdelnaya, 38 miles northwest of Odessa, and severed the Odessa-Chisinau highway by advancing eight miles to Kucharzan. Another three-mile push to the southwest engulfed Baden and brought Malinovsky's forces to the head of swamplands that reach to the Dniester lagoon.

Indian Division Fights Its Way Through Enemy

NEW YORK, April 6. — (AP) — The BBC said today that troops of the 17th Indian Division had fought their way through the Japanese and Imphal after 21 days of action in which 1,800 enemy casualties were inflicted.

The report said part of the action was along 10 miles of the Imphal-Tiddim highway. Two weeks ago the Japanese asserted they had cut the division to pieces. Actually, the BBC said, the division reached Imphal with a loss of less than a tenth of its transport.

Damage Heavy In Ploesti Raid

NAPLES, April 6.—Reconnaissance photographs taken after the Ploesti raid by U.S. bombers yesterday showed considerable damage in the railway yards, a bottleneck on the German supply and reinforcement line to the fighting front in northeastern Rumania.

Tank cars were shown ablaze, a roundhouse was blanketed by incendiaries and there recorded on repair shops and a munitions factory. Damage to railway tracks was described officially as "extensive."

Italian-based bombers also attacked railway yards at Nis and Leskovac, 22 miles to the south, in eastern Yugoslavia. Nis is a key junction on the railway from Belgrade to Sofia and at Leskovac also controls the main trunk line to Greece.

More than 40 enemy planes were destroyed in all operations from Italian bases yesterday, while 12 Allied heavy bombers were lost.

Eastern Workers May Again Assist In West Harvest

By C. H. HIGGINBOTHAM
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, April 6.—Should the need be present in the west there is not much doubt that eastern farm workers will go to Saskatchewan and Manitoba for the grain harvest this fall.

Labor officials said here today that 4,000 men left Ontario farms last year to work in western fields and from all reports received the scheme was successful. No man was taken from an Ontario farm if he was needed there.

Farmers in the west were pleased with the selection of the men.

"It will all depend on crop conditions in the fall," Ottawa said today. "But as all our reports indicate that the scheme worked well last year, if needed it will be employed again this fall."

WINNIPEG, April 6—(CP)—The Manitoba legislature adjourned for prorogation Thursday, last night adopted the budget for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1945 without a recorded vote.

U.K. "Heat Wave"

LONDON, April 6—(CP)—Britain had a "heat wave" Sunday, March 26, it now may be disclosed. The temperature was up to 70 degrees Fahrenheit. "This is the first time since 1907 we have recorded 70 degrees in March," said a weather bureau official.

Great Britain Plans Action Halt Strikes

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, April 6—(AP)—Fuel Minister Gwilym Lloyd George told the House of Commons today that "strike action in time of war cannot be justified" and a government moves indicated Britain was fashioning "a big stick" to end widespread stoppages in the mining and shipbuilding industries.

Maj. Lloyd George declared the coal crisis is the worst since 1926 and declared the "government cannot stand aside and allow collective bargaining or the machinery of conciliation and arbitration in this vital industry to be weakened or destroyed."

He did not disclose by what means this was to be prevented but Labor Minister Ernest Bevin has been authorized by the cabinet to deal with outlaw strike inciters under the wartime Defence of The Realm Act and the government announced it was considering what special powers were necessary to stamp out outlaw walkouts.

HUGE COAL LOSS

The fuel minister announced that 60 per cent of the Yorkshire pits now were operating but said the strike already had cost 1,000,000 tons of coal, has resulted in heavy inroads into dwindling reserves, and has stopped coal export to neutral countries.

"It has been possible to keep nearly all gas works in operation," he said, "but the position of many now is precarious."

He declared the bulk of the strikers were "completely out of hand and refused to accept the advice of their leaders."

The total of the striking Yorkshire miners has dropped from 90,000 at the start of the week to 60,000 and a non-related strike of 20,000 Clydeside and Tyneside shipbuilding apprentices apparently has collapsed but the general labor crisis appeared yet to be broken.

STRIKES IN BELFAST

Queen's University Is Given $300,000 By Motor Magnate

KINGSTON, Ont., April 6.—(CP)—Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's University yesterday announced the university has received a gift of $300,000 from R. S. McLaughlin, Oshawa motor magnate, to finance construction after the war of a mechanical engineering building.

"This very generous gift will make it possible for Queen's University to establish a building which will be adequate to look after the needs of mechanical engineering for many years to come," said Dr. Wallace. "There seems little doubt that the demand for mechanical engineers following the war in the re-orientation of industry will be great."

The new building will be called McLaughlin Hall.

Drop Papers

LONDON, April 6. — (CP) — British and American airmen have been dropping copies of a Dutch-language weekly paper and a monthly magazine over the Netherlands since last May, it was disclosed here yesterday. The weekly, Vliegende Hollander (The Flying Dutchman) has a circulation of more than 1,000,000.

Ten-Cent Coffee Allowed to "Aid Cafes' Expenses"

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—A prices board spokesman said last night that the board permits restaurant proprietors, on application, to charge 10 cents for a cup of coffee served with meals as a means of assisting them to reduce overhead costs caused by breakages and inexperienced help.

He was commenting upon the case of Nick Christakos, Winnipeg restaurant proprietor fined $35 and costs for charging a customer 10 cents instead of five.

The spokesman said he thought Christakos probably had been charging a nickel for coffee before the basic period—Sept. 15 to Oct. 11, 1941—and had not applied for permission to raise the charge.

Finns Reinforce Aaland Garrisons

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

STOCKHOLM, April 6—The Svenska Dagbladet said today in an editorial based on apparently reliable information that Finnish troops recently were sent to reinforce the Aaland Island garrisons in the Gulf of Bothnia, ostensibly as a precaution against Russian attacks but by implication as precaution against German moves.

"The editorial cites previous reports that German troops had been concentrated in Baltic ports and said there might be "secret obstacles" blocking a Russo-Finnish peace—obstacles such as were brought into the open by German occupation of Hungary.

Referring to increasing tension throughout the Scandinavian area, the editorial says, "Sweden is aware of these signs in the sky" which are confirmed by the announcement of a blackout of the Gotland peninsula, except for communications beacons, starting April 16.

Nazi Army Hard Pressed For Fuel

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—The German army has been forced to operate under "ruthless curtailment" of fuel since the start of the year, a spokesman for the ministry of economic warfare said yesterday.

Since last December Nazi armies carried only absolutely necessary supplies into battle areas, leaving all else for transport, he said, and substitute fuels, such as producer gas, were being used for training purposes and for military transport right up to the front lines.

"It doesn't mean the Germans are limited to a standstill that their aircraft will be grounded but it means the Germans are under the necessity of maintaining and building up minimum reserves of oil at some cost to speed and efficiency," he said.

This spokesman asserted if Rumania's Ploesti oil fields were captured by the Russians it would deprive Germany of 55 per cent of her natural oil supplies.

Allies' Aerial Ring Tightens Around Reich

By ALAN RANDAL

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—Encirclement of Germany by Allie air power gragually is becoming more apparent with the bombing of Budapest by day and night and of Bucharest by day from allied airfields established in Italy.

This start on what undoubtedly will be a tremendous aerial hammering of the heart of the Axis from a new side is one of the main benefits of the Italian campaign.

BRINGS STRONG STAND

It also is one of the outstanding reasons for the Germans' stiff resistance in Italy. For it would be serious for the Nazis if the Allied 5th and British 8th armies backed their way north and seized the plains of Lombardy and Venetia where Allied bombers would be much more handy to target cities than at present.

Canadian troops with the 8th Army had a hand in establishing bases which made aerial thrust against the Balkans. They helped capture Foggia and other airfields in eastern Italy which now are in full use by the Allies.

Here the striking power of the R.A.F. is perfectly integrated with that of the American air force.

POWERFUL FORCE

Just how great this Mediterranean force is may be judged by Prime Minister Churchill's recent statement that Germany is facing two great air forces based in Britain—the R.A.F. and the United States army air forces—both of which are nearly as large in numbers and much further in power than the German air force. Now it is indicated an air force of comparative size has been built in Italy.

Thus the Axis will be hedged in by aerial might west, south and east by the R.A.F. and the U.S.A.A.F. while to the north and northeast are the airfleets of the advancing Russians.

U. of A. Shorthorn Brings Top Price

CALGARY, April 6.—(CP)—T. Hamilton of Innisfail paid $1,600 for the Calgary spring show's grand champion Shorthorn bull consigned by the University of Alberta yesterday as the auction of nearly 1,000 purebred animals continued.

Gallant U.A. 25624 was by far the highest priced bull among the Shorthorns, his nearest competitor being $650 in the $300 bracket as Shorthorns generally realized lower prices than a year ago when an all-time high average was recorded.

It was announced that 203 Shorthorns had passed through the ring and had brought a total of $48,389 or an average of $283.33 per head.

Shorthorns occupied most of yesterday's sale with Aberdeen Angus cattle started this morning late in the afternoon. Top Angus price secured was $600 paid to Roy Ballhorn of Wetaskiwin for his show grand champion.

Aussie Fliers Win Fame On Distant War Fronts

By ALAN RANDAL

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—Australians, like Canadians, are scattered through the fighting air formations of the Royal Air Force. Many of them trained in Canada. Some, like Canadians, came to Britain and joined Australian formations and others became part of mixed crews.

Recently a group of Australian airmen celebrated at an East Anglian canteen two years of air warfare over Europe on a front 12,000 miles from their homes. They were personnel of Australia's senior bombing squadron which since March, 1942, has bombed about 70 enemy targets —including Emden and Berlin— 300 times and dropped 17,000 tons of bombs.

Men such as Group Capt. Hughie Edwards have brought lustre to the name of Australian flying men. He won Australia's first V.C. for his part in the daring daylight attack on Bremen in July, 1941, and also holds the D.S.O. and D.F.C.

DEFENCES PREPARED

The enemy defences had been warned of the approach of Allied aircraft but Edwards led his formation across Germany to Bremen at zero feet, carrying away telegraph wires and flying under high tension cables to bomb the target successfully through heavy flak.

Edwards was at the party. Missing was the man whom he chose as his rear-gunner on the first big raid on Berlin last August—PO. Roberts Christian Dustan, D.S.O., of Victoria, Australia, who now is an instructor somewhere in Britain.

At 21, and with an artificial leg they made him in Australia, he is already a veteran of the Australian Army and Air Force.

WOUNDED NEAR TOBRUK

He joined the Australian Army on June 3, 1940, when he was 17, and was wounded near Tobruk after which his leg had to be amputated. He returned to Australia, went to college to continue his law studies and gave it up to join the air force.

Wendell Willkie Out of Running For Presidency

eisive, he said, that he had decided to withdraw, but he requested that they withhold the announcement until after his speech.

He walked onto the stage a half hour late and blew a kiss to the crowd in response to the cheers.

"I wish I could speak to you from my heart tonight," he said. "I cannot, because there are too many factors that prevent it.

"If I spoke of what's on my mind I would make too great a castigation of American politics."

He then began his prepared address.

REACHES DECISION

Willkie made his decision to quit about midnight Tuesday while listening to the results of the Wisconsin primary. He and Mrs. Willkie were sitting in their hotel room at Norfolk, Neb., when he told her of his decision, a friend and political adviser reported.

He then went to bed and slept soundly, rising the next day to go to West Point where he addressed a crowd of approximately 500 persons.

"I hope America unites behind the next president, whoever he may be," he told his West Point audience, "for his task will be greater than that of the first president of the United States."

To the Omaha audience originally invited to hear him as a presidential candidate, Willkie said:

"It is obvious that I can not be nominated. I therefore am asking my friends to desist from any activity toward that end and not to present my name at the convention."

DEWEY IN TOP SPOT

He think:

1. Left Dewey the generally recognized though professedly unaspiring No. 1 possibility among Republican presidential prospects.

2. Raised the question whether he (Willkie) will support the man the Republican party nominates at Chicago in June—whoever that may be.

3. Left unanswered the question of what former Wilkie stronghold, if any, has gone over to Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, Lt.-Cmdr. Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota governor, or other Republican aspirants. Bricker declined comment.

Willkie declared last night:

"It has been my conviction that no Republican could be nominated for President unless he received at the convention the votes of some of the major mid-western states. For it is in this section of the country that the Republican party has had its greatest resurgence.

TEST OF SUPPORT

"Therefore, I quite deliberately entered the Wisconsin primary to test whether the Republican voters of the state would support me in the advocacy of every sacrifice and cost necessary to winning and shortening the war and in the advocacy of tangible, effective economic and political co-operation among the nations of the world for the preservation of the peace and the rebuilding of humanity.

"The result of the primary is naturally disappointing and doubly so since the delegate who led at the polls is known as one active in organizations such as the America First, opposed to the beliefs which I entertain.

"As I have said many times, this country desperately needs new leadership. It is obvious now that I cannot be nominated. I therefore am asking my friends to desist from any activity toward that end and not to present my name at the convention.

WORK FOR PRINCIPLES

"I earnestly hope that the Republican convention will nominate a candidate and write a platform which really represents the views which I have advocated and which I believe are shared by millions of Americans. I shall continue to work for these principles and policies for which I have fought during the last five years."

Willkie, in his address, accused the administration of pursuing a foreign policy that is causing delay and uncertainty in prosecution of the war and promoting "confusion, cynicism and distrust" on the home front.

ALBANY, N.Y., April 6.—(AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, overwhelming victor in Tuesday's Wisconsin presidential Republican primary despite his refusal to be a candidate, last night declined comment on Wendell L. Willkie's withdrawal from the race.

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—London's morning newspapers gave prominent front-page display today to the withdrawal of Wendell Willkie from the Republican presidential race, but there was no editorial comment, probably due to the late hour at which his announcement was released here (3:30 a.m. London time). Official sources expressed polite interest and surprise.

Ontario House Is Prorogued

TORONTO, April 6. — (CP) — Lieut.-Gov. Albert Matthews prorogued the first session of the 21st Ontario legislature at 3:10 a.m. today.

The legislature went through two divisions on government legislation. With the new C.C.F. opposition of 34 firing continual questions, it inched its way through estimates item by item in a frustrating that lasted for almost 15 hours.

Royal assent was given to 87 bills, including a government measure setting up a new department of planning development to guide the province's post-war plans.

A new minister has yet to be named to head the new department. The session which began Feb. 22 was the first since Premier Drew's government of 38 was elected last August and the first for E. B. Jolliffe's C.C.F. opposition of 34.

Another $125,000.00 Of Former Mayor's Fortune Is Found

And the end of the search was not yet in sight.

The latest cache was a safety deposit box in the First National Bank. It was crammed with stocks and bonds that had a face value of $125,000.

MONTAGU NORMAN

Montagu Norman Resigns Bank Post

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—Montagu Norman has resigned from the governorship of the Bank of England and will be succeeded by Lord Catto, financial advisor to the treasury, the bank announced today.

The press association said Norman, who had been ill recently, resigned on the advice of his physicians.

Norman, who was born in 1871, had been governor since 1920. It was a record span of office, for no other governor in the bank's 250-year history had served for more than five years.

The announcement said Lord Catto had been chosen by the directors to succeed Norman and added this choice will be confirmed at the elections April 18.

Thomas Sivewright Catto—who was made a peer in 1936—had been financial adviser to the treasury since 1940. He is 55.

Ont. Legislature Speeds Business To End Session

TORONTO, April 6—(CP)—The Ontario legislature sat well into the early hours today, giving third reading to all government legislation with two divisions and then plunging into estimates, last item of business before prorogation, expected tomorrow.

Government ranks split for the first time in the session as divisions came on an amendment to a government measure, proposed by Mitchell Hepburn (Ind. Lib., Elgin) and on third reading of the same measure. The C.C.F. opposition voted with the government, but both Labor-Progressive members—A. A. Macleod and J. B. Salsberg—voted with Mr. Hepburn.

T. A. Murphy (P.C., Toronto Beaches) and Dr. Hobbs Taylor (P.C., Huron) voted against the government both times as the house turned down the amendment by a vote of 64-19 and gave third reading to the bill dealing with Optometry act amendments.

Sailor Attacked By Zoot Suiters: Two Youths Held

into the picture in bringing about socialism in Canada and working towards a world socialist state," said Mr. Hansell.

COULD LOSE STATIONS

Private station operators should know that if "a Socialist state" developed they would lose their stations.

The convention approved a declaration to be signed by candidates for the national leadership pledging them to the support of political action, the application of social credit principles, opposition to centralization of power, opposition to Communism, Fascism and National Socialism, efforts to end the "monopolistic control of money," a "properly-managed monetary system," democracy in which individual enterprise would continue, a sufficiency of purchasing power for all Canadians, and recognition of the autonomy of provincial and other governments.

Norman Jaques, New Democracy member of parliament for Wetaskiwin, Alta., said at the morning session that Maj. C. H. Douglas, founder of Social Credit, had told him that the social crediters elected to the Canadian parliament "were the most important group since the barons went to Runnymede."

(King John of England surrendered the absolute power of a ruler to the barons at Runnymede.)

Maj. Douglas had warned that unless action were taken now the social crediters might never have another chance.

EVENING SITTING

At an evening sitting the convention approved a statement of policy suggested by a platform committee. The statement said the Social Credit Association asserted there were only two general policies—compulsion or inducement—and it proposed to follow the policy of inducement in the political field.

Social Credit believed freedom of the individual included the fundamental right to private property, it would restore to the people the right to regulate money supply and remove "oppressive bureaucratic methods."

The statement also reaffirmed the basic demands of Social Credit, including national dividends and subsidies in line with the real wealth of the Dominion as established by a system of national accounting.

STATEMENT DESIRABLE

Mr. Manning said a simple statement of policy in the national field was desirable. To it could be added a supplementary program dealing with specific subjects, some of them concerning certain areas. There had to be interest in subjects besides Social Credit only.

Victor Quelch, New Democracy member of parliament for Acadia, Alta., said there should be a general statement of policy or there was the danger that workers in various parts of Canada would contradict each other.

He said he believed the main reason behind the United Nations relief and rehabilitation organization was a plan to have nations accept international monetary proposals "or else." Social Crediters approved relief measures but they wanted no strings attached when such aid was given.

NO COMPULSION

Mr. Maynard said that Social Crediters were united on matters associated with Social Credit. There must be no compulsion and the right of individual freedom on subjects to be dealt with must be retained.

He said that Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in staking the life of his government on a question of teachers' salaries last week, had compelled many members to vote against their convictions in the British Commons.

Adjourn Hearing Of Murder Count Against Indian

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C., April 6. —(CP)—Preliminary hearing of a murder charge against Alex Prince, 23-year-old Fort St. George Indian, was adjourned yesterday for eight days pending arrival of Sergeant J. A. Young, provincial police ballistics expert stationed at Victoria.

Prince is accused of murdering Eugene Messmer, 33, and Hans Pfeuffer, 43, Finlay Forks district trappers who several years ago resided in Edmonton.

The prosecution is proceeding with preliminary hearing only on the charge that he murdered Messmer because inquest evidence was that Pfeuffer died of exposure after being shot through the thigh.

British Aircraft Advances Outlined

LONDON, April 6.—(AP)—Details on strides made in design and production of British aircraft were given to the Royal Empire society in London yesterday by Sir Marshal Sorley.

He said that at the end of the last war the maximum speed in R. A.F. planes was 140 miles an hour; in 1940 it had mounted to 350 miles an hour; today it was up to and more than 450 miles an hour.

The rate of climb in the R.A.F. today is in the region of between 4,000 and 5,000 feet a minute, compared with 1,000 feet a minute in 1930, he said.

With regard to bomb load the R. A.F. at the beginning of the war had machines which could carry 1,000-pound bombs for a range of 700 miles. Today the R.A.F. operates with a single bomb load of 7,000 pounds over a range of 1,500 miles or more.

Ban on Vital Ore By Spain Sought

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP) —Wflliam Perry George, state department specialist on Spanish affairs, is to leave soon for Spain to try to work out an alternate in negotiations with that country regarding Spanish exports of Wolfram to Germany, it was learned last night.

Although Spain has embargoed all shipments of the vital tungsten ore to Germany during the discussions which have been going on since late in January, it has not taken permanent action on the Anglo-American request.

Spain has signified her willingness to accede to four of the five points raised when shipments of oil from the Caribbean were suspended. These were release of interned Italian merchant ships, control activities of German agents, close observation of ports where Allied ships are loaded and withdrawal of all Spanish forces from their association in arms with the Nazis.

Woman Executive Denies Love Affair With Hitler Spy

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP)— Vivien Kellems, Connecticut war plant executive, yesterday denounced as "lies" charges made by Representative John Coffee (Dem., Wash.) that she had been the "lover of a Hitler fifth-column spy in Argentina."

She likewise denied that she had "played the Nazi game," as Coffee had contended in charges before the House of Representatives, and she told an interviewer:

"They are lies. I haven't any idea why Mr. Coffee should attack me—perhaps it is because of what I stand for, opposition to the new deal."

Miss Kellens said she had corresponded since 1935 with Count Karl von Zedlitz, mentioned in Coffee's speech, but she said the count had "never been a member of the Nazi party." She said he had been stationed in Canada as a representative of a German metal firm.

Patriots in France Aided by Feminine Scarlet Pimpernel

By FRANK LOWE

LONDON, April 6. — (CP) — Madame Lucille Aubrac, a charming, youthful French woman, is the type of person you would expect to meet at a tea dance. But for the last four years she has been playing the part of a feminine Scarlet Pimpernel, aiding in the escape of patriots, and now she is chosen as the first woman from inside France to become a member of the Consultative Assembly in Algiers.

Recently arrived in London, Madame Aubrac has been responsible for the escape of 71 persons, among them her husband, condemned to death by the Gestapo. A short while ago her efforts were recognized by the award of the Croix de Guerre.

Canadian Front In Italy Quiet

By DOUGLAS AMARON

WITH CANADIAN TROOPS IN ITALY, April 6.—(CP)—The Canadian Corps front was quiet yesterday with normal patrolling against the Germans' well-defended Arielli river position. Ontario troops on the Adriatic coastal sector suffered a few casualties when a German patrol ambushed them. The weather yesterday was warm.

Greater Production Of Penicillin Soon

CLEVELAND, April 6.—(AP)— Twenty-one new penicillin manufacturing plants in the United States and Canada, costing $20,000,000, soon will be making nine pounds of pure penicillin a month, enough perhaps for the military forces, but not enough for a date to be set when this life-saving drug can be given to the public without restriction.

The penicillin developments were reported to the American Chemical Society yesterday by Dr. Robert D. Coghill, of the United States department of agriculture at Peoria, Ill., where much of the penicillin work has been done.

The nine pounds will treat only 250,000 cases of severe illness, but will do for 2,500,000 cases of gonorrhea or other comparatively mild infections — mild, that is, when penicillin is the remedy.

The cost of making penicilin has dropped 84 per cent in the last year, so that the dosage for severe illness costs about $35; and for gonorrhea $5.

"However," said Dr. Coghill, "the price will undoubtedly go much lower, and penicillin will be within reach of everybody."

Seven Airwomen Soon to Become Signals Officers

TRENTON, Ont., April 6—(CP)— A tough course behind them that included 12 hours' flying time at the wireless operators' post, seven airwomen are at the R.C.A.F. officers' training school here on their way to becoming the first women signals officers of the air force.

The girls, who recently completed a course at Winnipeg's big wireless school, include Dorothy Winter, Regina, Alma Lauer, Rosthern, Sask., Betty Dowler, Pigeon Lake, Alta., and Nell Rose, Vancouver.

Start Already Made

Easing of Wartime Controls To Fill Store Shelves Again

By JACK WILLIAMS

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—Retail store shelves are likely to start filling up again as the result of the easing of wartime controls in recent weeks. But officials today cautioned that war production still holds top priority.

"The opening of a second front and new war requirements may bring new shortages," one source warned.

Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, summed up the policy of his board in a recent letter to a meeting of retail merchants in Quebec.

"Wartime controls cannot be suddenly abandoned, but the process should be steadily in the direction of lifting them at the first opportunity," he said.

MORE METAL GOODS

Metal products hold top place in the list of articles in which controls have recently been slackened. Munitions Minister Howe said recently the demand now exceeds the supply in only two or three metals, chief of which is tin.

As a result of this improved position some supplies of aluminum, copper lead, chrome and zinc have been released for civilian purposes. Use which may be made of their supplies is regulated by the Prices Board.

In the chemical field the restriction on the glycerine content of soap has been lifted. Controls have been taken off the manufacture of semi-porcelain and stoneware for restaurants.

Mr. Howe has made it clear there will be "considerable easing" of lumber restrictions this year. Combined with increased steel and hardware this is likely to lead to a marked improvement in building supplies.

Plan to Launch Fourteen Tugs

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—Fourteen steel tugs built in the yards of Central Bridge Company, Trenton, Ont., are to be launched during next week. The tugs, built under contract for the British ministry of transport, are to go down the ways two or three daily in what is believed to be a record for Canadian shipyards.

Board Purchasing High Grade Beef

REGINA, April 6.—(CP)—The Canadian Meat Board has purchased a quantity of beef for export to Britain since the first of the year equivalent to approximately 70,000 head of cattle, Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner said in a statement here yesterday.

At present the Board was purchasing the higher grades of beef in substantial quantities at floor prices one-half cent below the ceiling, he said. Shipping space was immediately available to move the beef to Britain.

Mr. Gardiner said the Meat Board was authorized in May, 1943 to purchase all surplus beef at the established floor prices for export to the United Kingdom. It was announced at the time that the ceiling price for beef would be a flat ceiling established at the highest level reached under the fluctuating ceiling of the previous year.

Welsh Proposals On Reconstruction Given in Report

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—The Welsh reconstruction advisory council has issued a report suggesting negotiation of post-war international coal agreements to give greater stability to the coal export trade, re-organization of Britain's tinplate industry and municipal airdromes in Wales and also at least one trans-Atlantic aerial terminus.

The four potential post-war danger spots in Wales and Monmouthshire it is stated, are technological unemployment in tinplate, closure and exhaustion of coal pits, derelict areas and unemployability due to age and poor physique.

Figures Tell the Tale

While Japan is not beaten and nothing but harm could come of underrating its forces, the losses which are being sustained by its air arm are positively fantastic. Since the war began United States airmen and ack-ack gunners have shot 4,316 Japplanes out of the sky, against a loss of 921. And in the latest affair, at Hollandia, the score is surely an all-time record; 288 planes shot down and destroyed on the ground for one bomber lost.

On the sea the balance is similarly heavy, though the record is not so lopsided. U.S. submarines alone have sent 517 Japanese ships of all sorts and sizes—excepting battleships—to the bottom, while scores more have been probably sunk or damaged.

Air power and sea power are indespensable to Japan. Without these in superior or at least equivalent strength it can neither maintain its land forces abroad nor defend itself against a crushing attack. It is plain that in both these vital branches its strength is diminishing; and there is a suggestion at least that the quality of its aircraft is below par.

Shaw's New Alphabet

George Bernard Shaw's impassioned advocacy of a new 42-letter English alphabet which would represent all speech sounds in the language is not so wild and eccentric as may appear at first sight.

If it is to our advantage to induce the wider use of English throughout the world it is to our advantage to take steps which will make the acquisition of the language easier. English is a difficult speech for the foreigner to acquire largely because of the very symbol discrepancies of which Mr. Shaw complains. The varying value of the alphabet symbols are discouraging at the outset.

On the other hand, Spanish is the easiest language to learn because it is almost entirely phonetic.

The romanization of 16 new characters would present no great difficulty because the new characters would doubtless be built on the framework of existing characters. For instance, the symbol chosen to represent the "th" sound could easily be a simple elision of the "t" and the "h".

Mr. Shaw's suggestion is well worth consideration.

Canada's Younger Talent

The musical composition of a 23-year-old airman of Saskatoon was played the other night by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and is said to have been "received with enthusiasm by a large audience".

This is more than the story of just one young Canadian who has achieved a measure of artistic success. For, implicit in this small news item is also the story of countless young Canadians who possess unusual talents in the arts and have not been able to achieve even a small measure of recognition.

No casual observer possesses a yardstick to estimate the genius of this young Saskatoonian. But it is a fair assumption that there are at least hundreds of young Canadians who possess more than ordinary gifts in music, painting, sculpture and literature.

This question, then, naturally arises; what is being done in a systematic way to enable these gifted young people to place their talents before the public in such a way as they will be encouraged, morally and financially, to develop them?

A country's cultural background is as vital an asset as its national income.

Surely the business of developing talent is public business and should not be left to the frequently haphazard encouragement of individuals and private groups.

Big Bill, the Miser

William Hale Thompson, one - time mayor of Chicago on the isolationist ticket, who distinguished his administration by making childish attacks on the British Crown, departed this life the other day and left a sizeable estate of several hundred thousand dollars. However, when his family began to investigate his affairs, they found currency tucked away in every conceivable corner. A total of a million and a half was found hidden in various places. Big Bill was a miser.

Everybody remembers Thompson's hatred of Britain. At one time he accused King George V of meddling in Chicago's educational affairs and threatened to "bust" His Majesty "on the snoot".

Now there is obviously no direct connection between Thompson's miserly habits and his Britain-baiting. There are many misers who cherish no desire to "bust" a king "on the snoot". Conversely, there are many lion's-tail-twisters in the Chicago area who have no fortune hidden away. But there is a connection between the two phenomena inasmuch as they both indicate the gentleman's unwholesome mental outlook.

And that is a generalization that might very well apply to all who endeavor to stir up international animosities. To put it bluntly, there is usually something the matter with their heads.

Big Bill Thompson's mania for "folding money" is significant. He evidently trusted his own government no more than he trusted his particular bugbear, King George.

30 in One Month

News that during March 30 enemy U-boats were sunk in the Atlantic is a sobering shock for any who have supposed that Doenetz had given up the fight and called his subs back to home waters. Obviously they are still abroad, prowling along the shipping lanes, hoping for prey. Since so many were destroyed they are probably as numerous in those areas as they ever were. But in the first three months of the year they bagged only one Allied or neutral merchant ship in the western Atlantic.

This explains why Allied naval and air escort and patrol craft have been doing, and how splendidly they are doing it. It explains also why Canada's navy is still calling for more men, and why more ships are still going out of the building yards and into service.

The U-boat has not been exterminated. It has not been driven from the sea. It has not changed its ways and become a law-respecting combatant. It has not been immobilized by mutiny or cowardice on the part of its crew. It is still the murderous, daring, far-ranging pirate vessel it always was. That its victims are few is due to the watchfulness of our sailors and airmen; that it so often meets disaster is due to their courage and skill.

Mr. Churchill has said repeatedly that the "bridge" of merchant ships across the Atlantic is the life-line of the Allies. If it had not been kept intact the Russians would not now be in Rumania, nor a mammoth invasion force poised in Britain. Canada can rightly be finer part in the war than it is playing on the sub-infested waters of the Atlantic.

The Waskesiu, first frigate built in a Canadian shipyard, was also the first to sink an enemy submarine. Evidently the frigates are well designed for the duties for which they are being built.

Captain Rickenbacker challenges predictions that the war in Europe will be ended this year. He says it is unlikely to be wound up before the end of next year, citing the "fanatical" German defence of Cassino as proof that plenty of hard fighting lies ahead. His forecast may be wrong, but his description of the Cassino defence is correct.

The Japanese column heading for Imphal finally ran into the defence system and was chased back into the hills by artillery fire. It is estimated that the three columns have lost 11,000 or 12,000 men in their three-week inroad into Manipur province. At that rate of going the "independent Indian army" Tokyo talked about does not seem likely to stir up the rebellion in India it hoped for.

How much damage the bombers did to the Tirpitz in Alten Fiord has not been given out, beyond an official statement at London that the ship probably cannot be put into commission for many months. That may be taken as a moderate assessment of the damage since it is stated that the bombing was done by Barracudas, a new special type of torpedo carrier. The Gneisenau at last reports was still lying dismantled in the former Polish port of Gydnia, as the result of a bombing attack made a year and a half ago. The Tirpitz is hardly likely to get to sea in time to take part in the events of the summer.

Urgent Need to Throw Eggs

Setser Finds Release From Life's Burdens in Practice

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Malahat Highway, on Vancouver Island, presents spectacles of heroic beauty (though in the precipitous cliffs of wooden curves often terrify flat prairie folk.) To nature's endowment of the highway man has recently added a still more remarkable touch. Spread along the road surface, for a distance of a mile or more, travellers have noted a layer of raw eggs, a gigantic omelette, as yet uncooked. Motorists persons passing by this point alleged that a nearby settler is in the habit of throwing eggs at them with deadly aim. The police, according to the local press, have restrained the egg thrower.

In wartime, with food scarce and people starving, no doubt the police are right. Yet it is too bad to think that the only known man who has indulged his urge to throw eggs has been repressed; and stranger still, that the police should examine his sanity. For, of course, every man in the world has long cherished a secret hope of throwing eggs. It is one of the primal instincts of the race, and only the conventions of society and the shortage of eggs have prevented a wholesale indulgence in it.

What in all the world could offer a greater release from the intolerable burdens of modern life than to have at your hand a barrel of eggs and, before you, a stream of travellers to throw them at? We live in a world that badly needs an egg aimed accurately at the back of its neck. But it is a world which has repressed these innocent delights and has ended in throwing bombs instead.

There was a better time, long ago, when we lived on farms. In those days it was the custom to place large quantities of eggs in incubators, heated by coal oil lamps, and after they had been there a week or so, we would take them out and examine them in a dark room against the light of a candle. This was called candling. If the eggs showed a dark spot inside, they were placed back in the incubator, for the spot would grow into a chicken. But the eggs which failed to contain the germ of growth were given to the children, being ineedible, to use as they pleased.

All small boys know how to use them. A boy who had trained his throwing arm on the baseball diamond could stand at a turn in the road on a dark night and, with a few dozen eggs, treat the lonely traveller to an interesting experience. But, until the uninhibited settler of the Malahat Highway turned up the other day, this fine old sport seemed to have disappeared from the world entirely.

Throwing eggs is no more a sport for small boys, however. It is an act of deepest symbolism, and it symbolizes the unity of mankind. This fact may not appear at once to the traveller who has just received the egg in his face but, after thought and ablution, he will see that the whole fact of human equality, and the basis of the democratic system, are represented in the spectacle of a yolky visage. The cussed sin of the old movies was equally symbolic, but an egg is better and you don't have to be an expert to handle it.

The egg and the custard pie are never thrown by the thoughtful man to injure any humble human being. They are thrown invariably, and with high motives, to destroy the pretensions of the vain man. Thus they assert, with more authority than any law, the essential equality of the whole human race. An egg-throwing race is a democratic race. The egg-thrower of the Malahat is a practising democrat. With practice his aim and his democracy will increase still further.

All our basic Anglo-Saxon humor is based on this principle, from Shakespeare through Dickens to Hollywood. To us, unlike the Germans, it is never funny to see the weak injured. We do not throw eggs or pies at the heads of poor widows. We throw them at the top hats of tycoons and the stuffed shirts of society. Shakespeare's buffoons, even in the tragic lines of "Lear," pricked the vanity of the great. Sam Weller warred against the Pecksniffs of the world. The marksmen of the Malahat, one feels certain, aimed only at political aspirants of Victoria to teach them a moral lesson.

British humor, which we have inherited with so many other good things from our ancestors, may seem harsh to us, but even the London music hall is vulgar. But this humor is not harsh because British people are cruel. It is simply or because they take a vulgar view of mankind. Quite the contrary. They take such a genial view of life that they interpret it comically, and such a high view of mankind that they cannot bear to have one man lording it over another. So they throw an egg at him and by pervading the atmosphere of England, they deny the political institution of nobility which they retain because it is too harmless to be worth abolishing.

This is in vivid contrast to the hard, cynical humor of the French, whose jests usually take the edge off to nauseate the jolly Anglo-Saxon. As Chesterton says in one of his great essays, French humor is the product of a people who have died on the barricades and can only be justified by this past suffering. British humor is the product of a people who have had no civil war for three hundred years, who learned to live together and who now recognize the principle of the Declaration of Independence, that all men are born free and equal. Those who violate the principle and assume they are something better, they throw eggs at. That is the worst, defeated at the next election.

That is why the fingers of the law-abiding Anglo-Saxon frequently itch for an egg and why, throughout the Anglo-Saxon world, there will be envy of the man from the Malahat who had one of the right instincts, the sure aim, and plenty of ammunition.

Who Owns the North Pole?

Question of Sovereignty In the Arctic is Often Discussed

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA—The turn of world attention to the Arctic regions is a natural consequence of Allied development in this war, which promises an era of air traffic in which North Pole areas may ultimately become as familiar to world travellers as settled regions are. The horizon of Canadian air policy is extending, to take account of Canada's northern frontiers. Some discussion has arisen, in Ottawa and Washington, over the question of sovereignty of polar regions. But this is still entirely unofficial, Ottawa sources explain.

Who owns the North Pole? In this simple form, the question is easily answered. No one owns the North Pole. For the Pole is merely a geographical point in the midst of a great inland sea, the Arctic ocean. This sea is bounded by Canadian and Russian territory for the most part, though United States, Denmark, Norway and Finland have coasts on it, the United States through its Alaskan dependency, Denmark through its Greenland dependency. The Arctic ocean is nobody's—not even Lake.

The question of sovereignty in the Arctic was discussed in the Canadian senate on Feb. 10, 1907, and Hon. P. Poirier advanced the theory which has become known as the "sector principle." It figures in all discussions of northern and southern polar regions. He said: "A country whose possession today is nearer to the Arctic regions will have a right, or should have a right, or has a right to all the territory that may ultimately become as familiar to world travellers as settled regions are. The horizon of Canadian air policy is extending, to take account of Canada's northern frontiers. Some discussion has arisen, in Ottawa and Washington, over the question of sovereignty of polar regions. But this is still entirely unofficial, Ottawa sources explain.

Who owns the North Pole? In this simple form, the question is easily answered. No one owns the North Pole. For the Pole is merely a geographical point in the midst of a great inland sea, the Arctic ocean. This sea is bounded by Canadian and Russian territory for the most part, though United States, Denmark, Norway and Finland have coasts on it, the United States through its Alaskan dependency, Denmark through its Greenland dependency. The Arctic ocean is nobody's—not even Lake.

The question of sovereignty in the Arctic was discussed in the Canadian senate on Feb. 10, 1907, and Hon. P. Poirier advanced the theory which has become known as the "sector principle." It figures in all discussions of northern and southern polar regions. He said: "A country whose possession today is nearer to the Arctic regions will have a right, or should have a right, or has a right to all the territory that may ultimately be found in the waters between a line extending from its eastern extremity north to the eastern point of Alaska and the western extremity north. All the lands between the tow lines up to the North Pole should belong and do belong to the country whose territory abuts up there. Now, if we take our geography, it is a simple matter." This is the "sector principle."

Canada has not relied upon this principle, but in other instances the theory has been invoked. It is the basis of a British declaration in 1917, laying claims to all islands and territories in the Falkland islands sector of the Antarctic. Similarly, it is the basis of British claim to territory in the Ross Dependency sector, issued in 1923. In 1926, the Soviet government relied on the sector principle in claiming all lands lying within the sector north of Russian territory. British regulations governing whaling operations in the Ross sector requires whalers entering that sector to obtain a license from the New Zealand government.

It is not upon the sector theory, but upon the principle of effective occupation that Canada claims all territory lying north of its continental position. In the case of far northern islands, effective occupation does not amount to much. But this may change in future, and after the war a great increase in Canadian "occupation" and use of the far northern region may develop as new air routes extend the frontier.

Yet the sector theory is attractive to a country with a boundary in the Arctic, as Canada has, and it has been used from time to time in supporting Canadian claims. During the season of 1908-09, an official Canadian exploration expedition proclaimed Canadian sovereignty over the whole Arctic archipelago between meridians 60 and 141.

Maps of Canada made by the Canadian government always include all the Arctic archipelago within Canadian territory. New sectional maps being printed by the Canadian government include all the latest information on Arctic territory. These are being issued for regions as far north as 75 degrees of latitude, far beyond the Arctic Circle. In 1921, Canada informed Denmark that discoveries made north of Canada by the Danish explorer Knud Rasmussen, would not be recognized as a basis of territorial claims. Since 1925, Canada has required explorers and scientists wishing to work in the Arctic islands north of Canada to obtain a Canadian license.

To the question whether Canada claims right up to the North Pole, Mr. Stewart, minister of interior in 1925, said: "Yes, right up to the North Pole." He defined the area of Canada's claim as all area lying between 60 degrees and 142 degrees west, but he evidently meant 141 degrees west, which is the Canada-Alaska boundary.

The Arctic Islands Preserve was created by Canada in 1926. It includes the archipelago north of the Canadian mainland. By order in council on May 15, 1926, this was reserved as hunting and fishing preserve for Eskimos and Indians.

By these acts, Canada has been exercising jurisdiction over the northern Arctic islands that fringe the Arctic Ocean. It is on that basis of exercise of jurisdiction that claims of Canadian sovereignty rest.

Explanation of Air Policy

Relation Between Private Capital and Publicly Owned Service

By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA—At first sight the air policy announced by Mr. Howe on March 17 appears to create a publicly-owned monopoly in civil aviation. This is the impression left by the decision to compel the Canadian railways to retire from the air business within one year after the end of the war.

On closer examination, this view will be found to be superficial. The policy is much more complicated than that. There are three kinds of air operations—international, main line or major domestic routes and the so-called feeder lines or developmental services. At the present time the CPA only operates the third class of services. Both in international and major domestic services the publicly-owned monopoly already exists. Therefore, in these fields, the new policy implies the creation of a publicly-owned monopoly confirms one that is already established.

In the third field, the policy proposes to maintain private enterprise other than the CPA. It is doubtful if this result will follow but this phase will be discussed in a later article.

The main point here, is that in international and main line services the only difference which the policy will make—and this, too, will be dealt with in some detail—is to give statutory recognition to a situation which now exists and which has existed since Trans-Canada was created in 1937.

It is argued that the new air policy rests upon certain basic principles which cannot be brushed aside and must be faced. Air transport is not a theoretical but a practical problem. It cannot usefully be approached in a doctrinaire or ideological way. You cannot argue for private enterprise or state ownership, as such. You must rank the best available policy in the circumstances as they exist.

With this in mind, there follows a careful summary of the case in support of a publicly-owned monopoly of international and main line services. In fairness it may be said that much of it comes from men who are experienced in civil aviation but who are also highly successful business executives and who normally are ardent champions of private enterprise.

Air transportation differs from all other transportation in that the state must put up by far the greater part of the money. In our own case, the public investment in airways, bases, aids to flying, meteorological services, beam systems and so on, now stands about $85 millions. Trans-Canada Air Lines is the chief user, or will be, of these facilities and its capital investment is $4,600,000. The ratio of public to operating investment in the future is going to increase. If you turn to the United States you find a total capital investment in all air lines of around $46 millions. The public investment in one airport only—La Guardia field in New York—now stands at $42.5 millions.

Air companies resemble taxi companies, using streets, garages and other facilities that the state provides and maintains. This, of course, is true of other forms of transportation — of highways and shipping. But the difference in degree is so marked as to invite a date comparison. It is not hard to obtain a car and make use of the highways. It is relatively easy to get into the shipping business in a small way. Any one can canoe just pick up an airplane and get into the air business. The cost is too great and, of necessity, there are all kinds of regulations which work against the shoestring operator. The kind of traffic which moves by air demands a high degree of safety.

But the taxpayer is not finished when the airways have been provided. The air companies must be subsidized. No air service in Canada could remain in business unless in receipt of a state subsidy—usually a mail subsidy. Indeed, no air company, with one or two exceptions, ever operated anywhere in the world without a substantial subsidy. The chief exception here was the Laurentide-Paris service. And even with heavy subsidies few air lines make money. Air travel is costly. It is a form of transportation that costs rise steeply with speed and the airplane is the speediest means of travel.

The argument so far supports two points:

(1) The public must put up something like 95 per cent of the total expenditures necessary to the establishment of an air service.

(2) The public must generously subsidize the actual flying operation.

All that private capital would have to put up to establish an air or international air service would be some three or four per cent. of the total investment required for feeder line and developmental services, such as are presently provided in Canada by C.P.A., the ratio of public to private capital is here, as well, no service would be possible without large state subsidies.

Book Is Mutual Introduction

Maurice Colbourne's book "America and Britain" tells one many interesting things about America and Britain. It speaks thus of trade.

Mr. Colbourne has performed a great public service in writing this book, and as our members well know, no one is better qualified than he to undertake such a task. There are many attractive features in this book including a useful list of dates relating to America and the British Commonwealth, and answers to questions which have been carefully collated and assembled and really tell you the things you want to know about America. Mr. Colbourne has not forgotten that he is a member of the Economic Reform Club as the following quotation shows: "No trade can long remain peaceful in the full sense of the word that does not begin at home. First things must come first; and the surest foundation for a peaceful foreign trade is a peaceful home trade. To be forced to sell patent leather shoes to Hottentots before your own countrymen are well shod is crazy. Yet that is the system until now.

It must be changed, so that foreign trade becomes the mutual exchange of overspills from prosperous home markets. Then the fatal debtor-creditor relationship will disappear from foreign trade and nations will no longer be forced by the mechanism of an obsolete system to try to get each other into unpayable debt. Until that relationship is obliterated, peace will be problematical. For there can be no abiding peace between a creditor and a debtor, and physical warfare is but economic warfare fought with other weapons." Far from such incursions into economics being out of place in a book about Anglo-American understanding, the oftener they are made the surer becomes the hope that that understanding will be established as well as deep, real as well as ideal."

Mr. Coldwell and the Cartels

By J. H. GRAY

The disclosures which have been made by the United States department of justice of the machinations of cartel and international cartels and monopolies are so serious that Canada cannot ignore them. The efforts of the cartels and monopolies to restrict production and increase prices have enjoyed substantial success and because this is so constitute a serious menace to our economic life. Canada has been caught in the middle between the British and American cartellers and, as we have said many times in these columns, it is imperative that the Canadian government revitalize its anti-combines department and get on with the job of smashing the combines.

The leaders of the C.C.F., having stumbled upon the disclosures in the United States, are now working night and day to turn the disclosures made south of the line to their political advantage. Thus, Mr. Coldwell is now devoting most of his time to making speeches about cartels. His whole one point about all these speeches which Canadians should keep clearly in mind. Mr. Coldwell has depended almost exclusively for his material upon the work done by the United States department of justice. His speeches are obvious re-writes of speeches made by United States officials. But while Mr. Coldwell borrows heavily from the material provided by the United States officials, he stops abruptly when he reaches the remedies they propose.

His conclusions are his own. In his speech on Friday to the Queen's University Alumnae Association is an apt illustration of the Coldwell technique in this regard. In it he uses the existence of cartels as a peg on which to hang an argument for socialization of our economy. Here are Mr. Coldwell's words on the subject:

"The issue of our time is that of public power, responsible to the whole people, against private power exercised by irresponsible financial autocracy. Upon the outcome of the issue hangs the fate of free institutions and whether democracy will go forward in fruitful progress or be utterly defeated for years to come.

"These nation-wide monopolies and world-wide cartels are the inevitable consequence of so called free enterprise in the advanced state of decline. We believe that no regulatory legislation or mere attempts at trust-busting can end their power. There is only one answer to the challenge they represent and that is socialization and effective control of the industries concerned."

Mr. Coldwell does not tell his listeners that he has parted company completely with the United States officials whose knowledge of cartels and monopolies is far more extensive than his own. They not only believe that our system of free enterprise can be saved but that it should be saved. They are confident that it can be done if it will to survive is coupled with vigorous reforms. They urge, for example, that by overhauling our patent system many of the fangs could be drawn from the cartels. They know they have a big job on their hands, but they regard it as much more desireable than any alternative like Mr. Coldwell's special brand of socialism.

Mr. Coldwell's solution is no solution at all. It would not get rid of the monopoly. It would turn the economy into a complete monopoly, with the evils of any monopoly but without any of the compensating factors present even under the present set-up. These evils are bad enough but at least one-yard stick by which efficiency can be judged. That is the company balance sheet. The monopolists must make a profit or their monopoly is of no value. In order to operate at a profit these companies, through ability to pay top salaries, have been able to obtain the services of engineers and executives of great skill and competence.

Even the tightest cartel must always be prepared to meet competition from a new field of invention. True, they try to forestall competition, but it is forced upon them nonetheless. The effect of this is to keep a large body of extremely capable administrators continuously on their toes.

But when the entire economy is cartelized, as it would be of course under the C.C.F., the incentive which competition provides does not exist. In place of the talented administrators of the cartels, and no one can deny that they are men of outstanding ability, the publicly owned monopolies would be operated by bureaucrats, political hacks, by men who wanted peace and security and no trouble. The idea that democratic control would be possible over such a gigantic bureaucracy is preposterous. The Russians for 20 years struggled with the problem of bureaucracy and are without anything like complete success.

In addition, the effect of the C.C.F. theories would be inevitably to retard progress by freezing uneconomic and wasteful industries into the system. While Mr. Coldwell denounces cartels in Ottawa, his comrades in Nova Scotia are trying desperately to manufacture Nova Scotia coal. The C.C.F. ministers of the Maritimes want that market restored. They want to bar the imports of U.S. coal. They want to force other Canadians to use their higher-priced coal. In this they are being slavishly supported by the Glace Bay Gazette, organ of the United Mine Workers' Union and the C.C.F.

Telephones

NEWSWEEK

A telephone that will answer itself and talk back to you when you get home was predicted by Bell Telephone Laboratories Inc., in New York for after the war.

The self-answering phone uses a recording device, usually a magnetic record on steel tape from which messages can later be erased by passing the tape between you and the home and thus permitting it to be used again and again.

If nobody answers the phone, the caller can start talking to the tape. When the person called comes home, he picks up the receiver and the message is "played" to him.

A variation of this device already in use records a two-way conversation for permanent record, but somebody has to pick up the receiver to make it work.

F.D.R., Dewey Likely Choices For President

By C. R. BLACKBURN

WASHINGTON, April 5.—(CP)—The high hopes of Wendell Willkie for nomination as Republican candidate for the presidency were ended by Tuesday's primary voting in Wisconsin, while majority Republican support went to non-committal Governor Thomas Dewey of New York.

If the result in Wisconsin carries the significance most independent observers here attach to it, the presidential fight this year will be between Dewey and President Roosevelt.

In Omaha last night, Willkie conceded defeat.

"ODD" RESULTS

Tuesday's stage in the long and intricate procedure by which United States presidents are elected had these odd results:

1. Not a single Willkie-pledged candidate was elected although he stumped the state making 35 speeches in 15 days.

2. All the Democratic support went to President Roosevelt although he has not indicated a willingness to run for a fourth term.

3. All the Republican support went to candidates who had made no personal appeal, and the bulk of it to Dewey who had told the electors he did not want it.

Purpose of the Wisconsin primaries, first to vote among the states that have this system, was to elect 24 delegates to the Republican national convention in Chicago next June 26, and 26 delegates to the Democratic convention in Chicago July 19.

At these conventions candidates will be nominated by each party for the presidential elections next November. The candidates are elected on a pledge to support a certain person for the presidential nomination but in some states they are not legally bound to abide by their pledge.

INDICATES CHOICE

Nevertheless the result is assumed to, and traditionally does indicate the choice of the parties in the state concerned.

With some Wisconsin returns yet to come in, the result was as follows:

1. All delegates chosen by the Democratic voters are pledged to support President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

2. Fifteen candidates pledged to support Dewey were elected, and three candidates at large, but known to be Dewey supporters, were leading, well in front.

3. Three candidates were elected to support Lt. Cmdr. Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, now on active service, and three were elected to support Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United States army commander in the South Pacific, who has not been heard from on the subject.

Lone Flier's Body Found in Dinghy

HALIFAX, April 6.—(CP)—A lone airman's body found floating in a rubber dinghy on the Atlantic gave R.C.A.F. officials yesterday the only clue to the fate of four fliers missing since Saturday night on a flight from the air station at Debert, N.S.

The eastern air command here announced last night an R.C.A.F. crash boat, one of several searching the sea for several days, had found the dinghy and the dead airman bobbing on the sea.

There was no trace of his fellow crewmen.

There was no sign of the plane either but presumably she had crashed into the ocean and the others had no chance to escape. Next-of-kin have been notified and the names of the dead and missing will be released later.

Air Power

The Setback at Cassino

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

Parallel with the struggle raging at Cassino is the discussion raging around the subject in print and on the air waves. The Allied setback, following demolition of the town by aviation and artillery, continues to be made the excuse for strange deductions about air power.

A headline states: "See Cassino Failure Blow to Air Power." A press agency dispatch out of Washington claims that the Cassino failure is "a sobering answer to all-out advocates of air power." A special correspondent at the front cables that Allied air forces have been "overglamorized at the expense of the infantry" and that Cassino ends the delusion.

de Seversky

All of which is nonsense of the purest grain. The invasion of the Italian mainland was undertaken in disregard of the basic principles of aerial warfare and over the protests of "all-out advocates of air power." Airmen warned repeatedly that Fortress Italia could be successfully invaded until the air strength of the enemy was broken; that any premature assault on the surface would be courting failure; that the use of air power for auxiliary tactical purposes was not ineffectual and costly employment of the new force.

The difficulties we have encountered in Southern Italy confirm that analysis. If anything, it is airmen who have the right to say "I told you so." Never before has air power is being underrated on the basis of the Cassino episode is a disheartening proof of how far we are still from an understanding of the new force.

GROUND STRATEGY

The ground generals decided, for reasons of ground strategy, to take Cassino. They ordered aviation and artillery to pulverize the town. The job was neatly done. Then the infantry, "queen of battle," failed to take the pulverized town. Why is that a failure of air power? By the same logic, is it not a failure of artillery, which pumped more than 50,000 rounds of shells into Cassino? Finally, if the airplane and artillery are demonstrated failures, is not infantry the greatest failure of all?

The simple fact is that the whole undertaking failed. To blame it on one or another of the supporting elements makes no sense. The Cassino setback only bears out the picion that the strategic planning and the military assumptions upon which the invasion was based were bankrupt. When the vaunted landsea-air team finds the going tough, the fault can hardly be laid to any one member of the team.

Though Cassino proves that the whole undertaking was ill conceived, a prominent commentator, Major George Fielding Eliot, finds it possible to exclaim that "wars are still won in the mud" not by tanks and airplanes. These, he says, are "all just members of the team." What we propose is that a weary and mud-caked infantryman shall be able to crawl forward into a new hole to another and stay there."

But it is precisely the whole "team" that met defeat. It is precisely the inability of air power to be able to follow up the thorough demolition accomplished by the other elements. Has Major Eliot tried to calculate how long it would take "a weary and mud-caked infantryman" to crawl from Cassino to Berlin, or from Australia and India to Tokyo? The Italian front has meant so little after Cassino just because it is based on such obsolete ideas of hole-to-hole crawling in an age when direct strategic blows at the enemy's heart are possible.

FUNDAMENTAL LAW

When we opened the Italian front without first attaining complete control of the air over the entire theatre of operations—and that means all of Fortress Europe—we defied the fundamental law of modern warfare conditioned by the ascendancy of air power. I pointed out time and time again that local and temporary air superiority was not enough; that we must take command of all the skies at the same broad sense as superior navies used to take command of the seas.

We shall continue to blunder and to squander precious lives and resources as long as we refuse to recognize the new military order. In effect we follow bow-and-arrow methods in an epoch of firearms. Then, when the enterprise fails, we blame the firearms instead of blaming the fallacious strategy.

GENUINE COMMAND

In Tunisia and Sicily we were able to take genuine command of the skies. Why? Because the Germans were unable to reinforce their air power over water gaps. We lost that command as soon as we invaded the continental mainland. We could merely establish brief local ascendancy, until the enemy shifted enough air strength to the point to wipe out such ascendancy.

That is the key to the riddle of the stalemate in South Italy.

Greek Premiership Offered Venizelos

CAIRO, April 6.—(AP)—Sophocles Venizelos was recommended as the new premier of Greece yesterday by the cabinet of the Greek government-in-Cairo after a stormy session at which all ministers resigned and then decided to continue in office provisionally.

Stumbling on the issue of unity with guerrilla leaders in the homeland as well as the post-war fate of the people, the cabinet wrangled at length over a successor to Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos, who stepped out Monday. Venizelos was reported to have refused the post on the terms offered.

It was understood Venizelos wanted to know flatly from King George whether he would return to a liberated Greece before or after a plebiscite is held in the country. The king, now on a holiday in London, has held to the position that he would make up his mind when the moment arrived, but would abide by any decision on the monarchy reached in a free election.

Calgary Delegate Chides French at S. C. Meeting

TORONTO, April 6.—(CP)—Ald. Mrs. Rose Wilkinson of Calgary said at the national Social Credit convention yesterday that once she "almost married a Frenchman" but was glad she hadn't when she found a Quebec delegation opposing a resolution calling for immediate Social Credit political action.

Amid cheers and laughter from delegates, including the Quebec delegation, Mrs. Wilkinson said she challenged them to show that Quebec would support delegates from elsewhere in Canada in political action.

"You'll never know what you missed when you didn't marry a Frenchman," said J. E. Gregoire of Quebec City.

"I was born in Dublin and I married an Englishman," said Mrs. Wilkinson.

Mr. Gregoire later said the Quebec delegates favored political action.

"That's fine now," said Mrs. Wilkinson.

"But the question is whether we are ready now," continued Mr. Gregoire, bowing to Mrs. Wilkinson.

With certain reservations, the Quebec delegation later endorsed a resolution calling for political action.

"They're a fine bunch of people, and they enjoyed the laugh as much as I did," said Mrs. Wilkinson.

Big Outcrop Seam Found in Britain

NEWCASTLE, April 6.—(CP)—Coal excavations began here recently have resulted in the discovery of the biggest seam of outcrop ever known in Britain. Stretching for 26 miles from Newcastle into the heart of Northumberlandshire, the seam is thought to hold several hundred thousand tons. The United States army is to lend mechanical excavators to help production which, when in full swing, is expected to yield a weekly output as big as that of any of Britain's largest collieries.

Rumania's Will To Continue War Is Said Broken

By WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, April 6—(AP)—Rumania's days as an effective fighting power appear ended under the onslaughts of Russian armies and Allied bombers.

Premier Ion Antonescu, it is believed here, is finding it impossible to take Rumania formally out of the war since German troops hold all key points but the people's will to fight is broken and Rumania now is in the same apathetic state as Italy.

(A Blue Network broadcast from London quoted Turkish dispatches as saying Antonescu would ask Moscow, Washington and London for an armistice).

COLLAPSE LITTLE HELP

Although Hitler's Balkan satellites are disintegrating under the burden of war, Allied military chiefs preparing the western front have small hope that a Balkan collapse would be of any immediate serious injury to the German war machine.

Rumania's will to fight flares only at the possibility of war with Hungary, and ever since the Germans started to retreat in Russia, Rumanian army morale has dwindled to sub-zero with the Soviets reporting the capture intact of Rumanian battalions in recent advances. A large proportion of the effectives remaining in the Rumanian army now is trapped in the Crimea.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

IF THE turnstiles do not play a merry tune for the C.A.H.A. and Maple Leaf Gardens when the Memorial Cup finals are staged this month, it will be no fault of Frank Sargent, amateur hockey's big boss man—even although home town supporters of the rival clubs may experience considerable difficulty in recognizing members of their respective teams.

The term "military replacement," the original magic formula, was tossed out of the window long ago and apparently a mere expression of doubt as to the outcome of a series now has become the password to additional help.

Possibly it may be a bit old-fashioned but the idea still holds in some quarters that playoffs should be a test of ability of contending clubs, rather than of the staying powers of the paying citizen, or the strength of his purse.

SHIPBUILDER, NOW FLYER

BUT even if no other records are posted by the juniors this season, a new high for replacements will have been reached. It does seem though that a limit should have been set somewhere along the line.

Almost indiscriminate shuffling between junior clubs is bad enough, but when a player takes part in an Allan cup semi-final one night and then appears in the lineup of a Memorial semi-finalist the next, the replacement privilege takes on the aspect of a racket.

Possibly the Port Arthur Flyers need Pete Bakor to bolster their stand against the up-and-coming Trail Juniors, but that hardly justifies okaying a jump from one semi-final into the other on successive nights.

The young Smoke Eaters have not taken on any help since they hit the play-off road. They wanted Goalie Ralph Hansch, of the Edmonton Canadians following the Alberta-B.C. play-off, but that, reportedly, was frowned upon in spite of the fact that Trail was the only junior club in British Columbia, thus making replacements from within the province a difficult problem. Come on Smokies!!

ENGINEERS NEW CHAMPS

REPORTS are unanimous that the U.S. Engineers put on a wonderful display down in Magrath in winning the Alberta championship this week. The scores were unusually high for playoff basketball though and the American quintet from Edmonton must have come powerfully close to setting a record in compiling a total of 171 points for two play-down games.

Cage followers here now will be looking forward to the visit of the Combines of Vancouver next week for the first of the inter-provincial tests, which local fans hope will be merely the first in an unbroken string of successful hurdles for Engineers along the dominion title trail.

Calgary Service all-stars will be here on Saturday for the second of the Alberta intermediate two game playoff with U.S. Air Corps. The local airmen, champions of the Edmonton Inter-Service Basketball League hold an 11-point lead obtained last Saturday in Calgary.

Engineers Win Alberta Basketball Honors

Local Cagers Next Take On B. C. Squad

MAGRATH, Alta., April 6.—(CP)—Edmonton U.S. Engineers made it two straight over Magrath Lions in winning the Alberta senior basketball championship and the right to play the British Columbia representatives in the first round of the Dominion playdowns.

Following up their 74-49 victory of Tuesday the Engineers defeated Magrath 97-47 here Wednesday night.

Earl Ayers, Bob Chamness and John Gullekson paced the new champions in their impressive victory, accounting for 69 of Engineers' total. Ayers came through with 27 points, Chamness 22 and Gullekson 20, while "Windy" Smith with 12 and Harley Miller and Mike Kroma with eight each were the other scorers for the Edmonton club.

Toomer, who chalked up 11 counters led the Magrath cagers who were unable to match the speed of the U.S. team.

Engineers' basketball display was the finest ever witnessed by local fans.

The Alberta title holders now meet Vancouver Combines in Edmonton for the western Canada championship. Tentative dates have been set for the B.C. club to play in the capital on April 14, 15 and 17.

Winnipeg Fans Are Impressed By Trail Club

WINNIPEG, April 6.—(CP)—The average Winnipeg hockey fan last night wore a puzzled frown—result of Trail Smoke Eaters 4-2 overtime victory over Port Arthur Flyers Tuesday night in the first game of the best-of-five series Canada Junior finals. Second game will be tonight.

Winnipeggers had adopted the Thunder Bay champions after they eliminated the Manitoba champion St. James Canadians and for more than 58 minutes Tuesday night appeared to be right. But Smokies surged from behind a 2-1 deficit to eke out the victory.

The Winnipeg fans were impressed when the British Columbia champions spotted Flyers two goals in the first three minutes then held them scoreless until they tied it up with less than two minutes remaining.

Always fond of the underdog, they liked the way the first British Columbia team to enter the Abbott cup finals rapped in the winning goals in the first six minutes of overtime.

So while the teams rested yesterday in preparation for tonight's resumption of the series, the Winnipeg hockey fan was worried.

Davis Scores Technical Kayo

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP)—Al (Bummy) Davis, one round knockout of lightweight champion Bob Montgomery six weeks ago, scored a six-round technical kayo over Oscar Suggs, New Bedford, Mass., in the feature bout at the Broadway arena Tuesday night before a capacity crowd of 4,000.

Suggs, weighing 147½ pounds to 142¾ for the Brooklyn clouter, cut Davis' left eye in the fifth round but was unable to match Davis' punching power. Suggs was unable to continue after 12 seconds of the sixth.

Says Not Having Louis Box Mills Is Regrettable

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, April 6.—Freddie Mills is to box Jack London again in London for the heavyweight championship of Great Britain. They will probably open the outdoor season.

I have had conflicting reports on Mills more recently, but will take Ted Broadribb's word that he can fight. Broadribb, the featherweight Kid Snowball of 20 years ago, was the only one who said Tommy Farr would stick around for any length of time against Joe Louis.

It's regrettable that Freddie Mills of the Royal Air Force and Joe Louis of the United States Army can't meet this summer, when one of the war funds certainly could use a generous slice of the tremendous gate that would be attracted by an international match of this calibre.

Why did the Red Cross War Fund have to take a measly 10 per cent—$15,000—from the Beau Jack-Bummy Davis thing, for example, when there are performers like Louis and Conn available, and more than willing to do more than their share?

The War Department is shortsighted in preventing soldiers like Louis and Conn from prolonging their brilliant ring careers by keeping active in competition. Especially when they could be used to such advantage.

It is in the ring that they can do the most good, and I don't mean entirely for themselves.

Lodestars Shade Port Arthur To Tie Western Senior Final

PORT ARTHUR, April 6.—(CP) — New Westminster Lodestars, with superior backchecking, nosed out Port Arthur Shipbuilders 2-1 here Wednesday night to deadlock the best-of-seven western Canada senior hockey finals at a game apiece.

First game ended in a 5-5 overtime tie with Port Arthur taking the second 6-1. Fourth game will be played here Saturday night.

In moving the second game was an off one, Lodestars excelled in backchecking and forechecking and in the last half of the game broke up most of Shipbuilders attacks at centre ice.

Pete Leswick, nifty centre, sent the British Columbia champions ahead midway in the middle period but four minutes later Norm Wright of Port Arthur got that one back on a power play with Bill McKenzie and Pete Wywyrot.

Busted Brayshaw finished off the victory with a pretty goal after two minutes of play in the third period, taking a double pass from coach Frank Dotten and Leswick.

Goalkeeper Andy Young turned aside shots with ease whenever Shipbuilders sifted through the New Westminster defence while Jimmy Hill at the other end had a busy time.

Starting Play to Clinch No-Hitter Carl's Big Thrill

By CARL HUBBELL
Famous Pitcher

Baseball has given me many thrills, of course — striking out Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons and Cronin in a row in the All-Star game of 1934, for example—but starting a double play to clinch a no-hit game first quickened my pulse in sports.

It took place May 8, 1929, my first full season with the Giants. The game was played at the Polo Grounds and the score was 11-0 in our favor as the Pirates went to bat in the ninth.

Harry Riconda, pinch-hitting for Ray Kremer, Carl Hubbell whaled a drive at Chick Fullis in left field. Fullis got both hands on the ball, but dropped it. Sparky Adams dribbled a ground ball to shortstop Travis Jackson, who fumbled in his eagerness to start a double play.

Two errors, two on and nobody coming up but the Waner brothers, Little Poison bit for a third strike, then came the play.

Big Poison sizzled a grass-cutter between the box and first base. I scooped up the ball, whirled, shot it to Stoney Jackson, covering second, and he rifled it to Bill Terry for the double killing—and I had pitched a no-hit game.

Port Arthur Club Gets Replacement

PORT ARTHUR, April 6.—(CP) —President Frank Sargent of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Wednesday announced Port Arthur Shipbuilders had been granted permission to use defenceman Pete Bakor as an injury replacement for left winger Gordon Brown.

Bakor, who played all season with St. Catharines Saints of the Ontario Hockey Association, played last night in the third game of the western Canada senior championship finals against New Westminster Lodestars. Shipbuilders lead the series 1-0 with one tie.

Brown, troubled all season with a swollen ankle, has been advised by a doctor to stop playing.

Durocher announced he planned to participate in the remaining spring exhibition games and would play second in the Red Cross game against the Phillies April 13. He indicated 18-year-old Gene Mauch would open the season at shortstop.

Fifty-Six Horses Nominated 85th Running, King's Plate

TORONTO, April 6.—(CP)—Fifty-six horses, including most of the outstanding Canadian-bred two-year-olds of last year, have been nominated for the 85th running of the King's Plate—Canada's premier racing classic—at Toronto's Woodbine Park, May 27.

In releasing the list Wednesday Major Palmer Wright, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Jockey Club, said the entry is the largest on record and compares to 45 nominations last year.

Owners of former King's Plate winners, who were among the nominators, are: H. Giddings, C. Hermon, C. George McCullagh, Col. R. S. McLaughlin, H. C. Hatch and J. E. F. Seagram.

The historic race—oldest continuously run stake of North American thoroughbred racing—will be open this year to all three-year-olds foaled in Canada. From the time of the first running in 1860 the King's Plate had been restricted to horses foaled in Ontario.

INCREASE STAKE

Last January the club decided to increase the stake $2,000 to $10,000, making this year's purse worth approximately $13,000 to the winner of the one mile and one furlong route.

On top of the $10,000 added by the club, the King annually gives 50 guineas to the winner.

Last year, Charlie Hemstead's Paolita, black filly, won the plate.

Hemstead, whose home is in Markham, Ont., leads the list of nominations for the 85th event with six. Col. McLaughlin, owner of the Parkwood stable, Oshawa, Ont., and James G. Fair of Gainsville, Ont., each have four.

Those with two or more nominations are: H. C. Hatch, Toronto, three, and Whittier Park stock farm, Winnipeg, J. Diamond, Vancouver, Riverdale stable, Toronto, C. G. McCullagh, Toronto, J. E. Seagram, Waterloo, Ont., and the Garden City stable of Niagara Falls, Ont., with two each.

OTHER WEST ENTRANTS

Other western Canada entrants are L. H. Appleby of Vancouver and F. G. Salisbury of Saskatoon.

Among the horses nominated were the three shal ow "top" juvenile stakes in Ontario last season—Nimblefoot, winner of the Clarendon Plate; Cyperac, winner of the Coronation Stakes, and Heulwen, winner of Mrs. Orpen's Cup and Sapper. Heulwen and Cyperac, both from the Parkwood stables, were the two top money-winners in Ontario last season, the former making $10,965 for its owner and the latter $6,800.

Quebec Seniors Take Game Lead In East Final

QUEBEC, April 6.—(CP)—Quebec Aces defeated the Sudbury Open Pit team 5-1 Wednesday night in the first game of the eastern Allan cup senior hockey final, a best-of-five series.

The fast skating and smooth passing Quebec Aces won the opener before a record crowd of 6,518.

The next two games will be staged in Toronto April 8 and 10 with the teams returning to Quebec if any more games are necessary.

Lude Check paced the Quebec attack with a pair of tallies while Rozzini, Stahan and Bergeron bagged the other Aces goals.

Quebec goalie Lionel Bouvrette seemed to have a well-earned shutout in the bag but two minutes before the end Maurice Vaillancourt clipped a neat goal after his unassisted scoring dash from the blue line.

Sports . . . Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP)—Writing as a small-town fan as well as a sports editor, Jimmie Murphy of the Canton, Ill., Daily Ledger, offers the opinion that "small town fans are the forgotten men of the sports world despite the fact that they support sports events in the larger cities by attending sports events whenever possible." . . . So far as baseball is concerned, Jimmie blames the farm system for this situation and adds that, if farms were eliminated, it would mean the return of minor league baseball to many small cities which dropped out because the local owners couldn't compete with city-owned clubs. . . . Mainly because he touches on the "small-town" angle, Jimmie's opinions seem to merit special attention.

ROUND THE MULBERRY BUSH

Jimmie touches on various other angles, notably the unfairness to ball players who are held down on farm clubs, but in a few words he has hit both the strength and weakness of the farm system. . . . The weakness is that fans do not like absentee ownership, especially if the owner clubs grab off a few good players in the middle of a hot pennant race. . . . The strength lies in providing efficient management and absorbing the inviable losses.

. . . As one farm advocate put it: "Baseball is a specialized business and you can't expect a small town baker or hardware man to know how to run a ball club. If those fellows have a few bad seasons, they just quit and no other club can start up in that territory until all obligations are paid off." . . . And, as Murphy says, the fans support events in the larger cities (or did when they had gasoline) sometimes at the expense of their home town teams.

7,288 See Montreal Lose 3-2

Generals Within One Game Of East Junior Puck Title

TORONTO, April 6.—(CP)—The Oshawa Generals Wednesday night moved within one game of the eastern Canada junior hockey title as they scored a 3-2 victory over Montreal Royals in a dazzling game which had the 7,288 fans in a continual uproar. The win gave Generals a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series which will be resumed in Montreal Saturday night.

Blonde Harvey Bennett, tall goal tender, was a mighty factor in the O.H.A. champions' victory. He kicked out Montreal shots from all angles and distances during offensive drives which several times held the promise of a Montreal triumph.

The Royals had the edge in the territorial play, chiefly because the clever pattern passing which features the Oshawa attack was disrupted by vigorous defensive play by Yvan Hamel, Harry Kazarian and Doug Harvey.

However, it was a combination attack which finally paid off for the Generals. Albert Shewchuk, husky defenceman from Fort William, Ont., was the goal scorer and he combined on the play with Bill Ezinicki and Bob Love. The winning goal came mid-way through the third period after the game had been tied up in the second.

Generals had taken the lead in the first period on a goal by Bill Barker on a play with Dave Bauer and Ken Smith. Mike Demchuk tied it up for Royals in the first 23 seconds of the second period with an unassisted goal.

Floyd Curry, who was the leading bad man of the game with three penalties, fired the second Oshawa goal on a play with Bauer and Smith. The third goal of the second period was scored by Ross Planche for Royals. He was assisted by Demchuk and Kazarian.

The game marked the first appearance in the series for Harvey and Demchuk who took advantage of a navy furlough to take part in the game. Both were stand-out performers.

LINEUPS

Montreal—Nadon, Harvey, Kazarian, Demchuk, Planche. Moreau. Subs: O'Connor, Denis, Plamondon, Todd, Donnelly, Hamel.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Next Wednesday night the Denver Old Timers' Association will sit down to a corned beef and cabbage dinner at the Shirley-Savoy hotel in the Colorado metropolis. We hope the fodder agrees with them. They deserve it because of their grand contribution to baseball and to American boyhood.

These sports-minded men of the Rockies originated the now-famous "Denver Plan" for bringing baseball to every boy in a community, from 11 to 17. This plan worked out so successfully during the two brief years of operation in Denver that it now is being investigated and copied in other cities throughout the country.

The "old timers" project is so superior to other schemes for bringing baseball to the boys that it may be regarded as one of the most important contributions to the national pastime since Abner Doubleday laid out the original diamond at Cooperstown, N.Y., in 1839.

ACHIEVES RESULTS

IT effectively achieves these results: (1) Brings healthful recreation, uniforms and equipment during the vacation period to all boys from 11 to 17, regardless of social condition, race, creed or color; (2) Reduces juvenile delinquency; (3) Develops youngsters into top-flight players; and (4) Makes the boys, their families and the community baseball conscious.

According to Jack Carberry, sports editor of the Denver Post, a fund of 1,440 Denver boys will begin play, under the old timers' plan, on June 12, the first Monday after the public schools close. The summer-long program will cost about $10,000.

The old timers—with a nucleus of men who formerly played professional or amateur baseball—direct the entire program, without help from the city or from civic organizations. Chief source of funds is the 120 sponsors of the 120 teams in the league. Each sponsor—usually a commercial or industrial firm—pays $30 for the privilege of having a team represent the firm in league play, and wear the firm name on its shirts. Additional funds are obtained from the city-wide membership of the association. Members pay dues of one dollar a year.

DIVIDED INTO DISTRICTS

THE city is divided into nine playing districts, with a director for each district appointed by the association. Capable coaches are hired to instruct the players and to umpire the games.

Boys make application to enter league play, and are instructed to report at their district fields when the season opens. Boys from 11 through 12 play in the mornings, and from 13 through 17 in the afternoons. For two weeks they are schooled in fundamentals, and on June 26 they are assigned to teams, and given suits and equipment.

Leagues are formed, each comprising eight or 10 teams of boys in approximately the same age groups. During the first month, play is confined within the respective leagues, after which there is inter-league competition. Finally, the champions of various divisions are crowned; and they meet in a "world series" at the city's best ball park. Admission to all games is free.

Stanley Cup Play Moves to Chicago

CHICAGO, April 6.—(AP)—Chicago's Black Hawks, intent on repeating their Cinderella trick of last week when they eased the Detroit Red Wings out of the Stanley Cup play-offs for the National Hockey League championship, will meet the Montreal Canadiens tonight in the second game of the title series.

The Canadiens, top-heavy favorites, won the series opener Tuesday night, 5-1, but the Hawks, playing in their first cup final since 1938, promised it'll be a different story this time. A capacity crowd of 18,000 fans will be on hand at the Chicago stadium to see the Hawks gun for the equalizer.

Harold (Mush) March, Hawk forward who suffered an injured knee against Detroit two weeks ago, will be back in the lineup, Manager Paul Thompson said yesterday.

TORONTO, April 6.—(CP)—One of the United States army basketball teams in Edmonton has had a most serious charge levelled against it, the players have been accused of amateurism! That is something they will have a hard time living down, methinks.

Ches McCance of Winnipeg, who played with the R.C.A.F. in Edmonton, told Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning that the Yanks are snappy basketball players, "but they're not inclined to take the game very seriously, they play it chiefly for fun." Ches adds that is a very commendable attitude indeed.

Horse cents:

Every horse that digs its shoes into a Canadian race track is worth about $2,000 to the federal and provincial governments in taxes of one sort or another, Wallace (Vancouver News Herald) Kelk computes. The Altonah senior girls' basketball team in Winnipeg is bringing Vancouver Hedlunds to the 'Peg for another try at dethroning them as Canadian champions. Hedlunds downed the Winnipeggers the past two years. Among curling rarities was John Jackson's Winnipeg Thistle rink's defeat of one skipped by his brother, Jim. John scored an eight-ender on the final end to win. Airmen at the R.C.A.F. Moncton (N.B.) station are starting indoor baseball practice sessions in the drill hall three days weekly.

Infield Is All Set

Pitching Biggest Problem For Manager Joe Cronin

LAKEWOOD, N.J., April 6.—(AP)—Pitching is the big headache for manager Joe Cronin as he heads into his 10th term as pilot of the Boston Red Sox with his work cut out for him in trying to improve on last year's seventh-place finish.

Cancellation of Wednesday's scheduled exhibition against the Giants here further hampered Cronin's efforts to get a line on mound strength.

Added power in the person of Indian Bob Johnson and a well-balanced veteran infield and improved catching are counter-balanced by the loss of such mound stalwarts as Tex Hughson, Dick Newsom, Mace Brown and Joe Dobson.

Lefty Oscar Judd, formerly of Ingersoll, Ont., who hung an impressive 11-and-6 victory record in 1943, Yank Terry, winner of seven, and Mike (one-man-team) Ryba are the remnants of last year's regular staff.

George (Pinky) Woods, six-foot four-inch, 232-pounder who won five and dropped six in 23 games a year ago, appears to be the best bet for a regular turn.

The infield is set until the army takes its pick from Tony Lupien at first, Bobby Doerr at second, Jim Tabor at third and either Skeeter Newsome or Eddie Lake at shortstop. All are draft vulnerable. Cronin, who will be 38 on Oct. 12, has been whittling off some extra pounds getting ready to take his cuts when hitting is needed.

Bill Nicholson Still Undecided

FRENCH LICK, Ind., April 6.—(AP) — Bill Nicholson, Chicago Cubs' outfielder who led the National League in runs-batted-in last year with 128, arrived in spring camp Wednesday but said he may quit baseball for the duration and return to his Chestertown, Md., farm.

Nicholson, 28, married and the father of two sons, said he would make his decision "in a couple of days" and would work out with the club in the meantime.

Embree Expects Win 15 Games For Cleveland

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP)—"Put me down for 15 victories," Charles (Red) Embree declared at Cleveland Indians spring training camp at Lafayette, Ind., Tuesday.

Embree can make good his boast if he shows the form he did in pitching Wilkes-Barre, Pa., to an eastern league pennant in 1941.

That year Embree, a 22-year-old right hander from Glendora, Calif., turned in an earned run average of 1.69 in winning 21 games and losing only five for Wilkes-Barre. Called up the next year by the Indians he won three and lost four. Last season he stayed on his California farm.

News about other major league teams:

St. Louis Browns—George McQuinn, veteran first sacker, has played every inning of five exhibition games and handled more than 50 chances without an error.

Detroit Tigers — Team started schedule of 10 games in 12 days by playing Rochester at Terre Haute, Ind., Wednesday.

Pittsburgh Pirates — Looking ahead two weeks, manager Frankie Frisch tentatively picked southpaw Elwin (Preacher) Roe as starting pitcher against Cardinals.

Philadelphia Phillies—Outfielder Lou Riley and southpaw Charley Ripple joined squad.

Brooklyn Dodgers — Outfielder Luis Olmo hopes to keep up slugging. His triple and single beat Yankees at Trenton, N.J., yesterday.

New York Yankees—Rookie outfielder Jack Phillips made timely single to drive in two runs against Brooklyn.

Chicago Cubs—Paul Derringer's ankle, injured several weeks ago, swelled up after he worked three innings against Detroit Sunday. More X-ray pictures may be taken.

Ian Eisenhardt To Be Director Physical Fitness

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—Maj. Ian Eisenhardt of Vancouver, senior army sports officer, seconded to the health department to become national director of physical fitness, will take over his new post June 1, it was learned reliably Wednesday.

Maj. Eisenhardt has called a meeting of the national advisory council on physical fitness for Ottawa some time in May, when he hopes to hear a general exchange of ideas and see a start on formulation of a national health program.

So far all provinces except Ontario and Quebec have signified their intention of participating in the national program, which is to be executed in co-operation with provincial health departments. Health department officials hope to hear favorably from the two other provinces soon.

The program envisions mass sports participation with the object of building up the nation's health standard.

More than 15,000 soldiers participated in the army boxing tournament, now reaching its final stages. On May 4, 14 western survivors will meet the 14 best easterners in the Dominion final here. Each team will be made up of seven open class fighters and seven novices.

Next year Maj. Eisenhardt expects 50,000 soldiers to take part in the boxing part of the sports program.

When the boxing finals are over the army masses will try their luck at cross-country running.

Tirpitz Ready for Sea When Hit

Heavy Damage Inflicted on Nazi Battleship In Attack by Britain's Deadly Barracudas

By PHIL AULT
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

LONDON, April 6.—Deadly British Barraquda planes, covered by a carrier-based fighter armada, caught the German battleship Tirpitz last Monday as the repaired German raider was about to steam out of her Norwegian lair and set her afire with more than three bomb hits, the admiralty announced last night.

The Barracudas, light fleet planes still on the secret list, obtained heavy and medium bomb hits forward, near the bridge and amidship on the 41,0000-ton dreadnaught in the first of two attacks pressed home through a thick smoke screen which the Germans laid around the vessel.

"Further hits were obtained in the second attack and when last seen the Tirpitz was afire amidships," the Admiralty said.

The Admiralty had first announced the latest successful attack on the oft-bombed Tirpitz last Monday shortly after the carrier planes struck. Subsequent information indicated that she had received heavy damage which might require months for repair.

COVERED BY SEAFIRES

The two Barracuda attack squadrons were covered by British Seafires, the carrier version of the Spitfire, and American-made Vought-Sikorski Corsairs and Grumman Wildcats and Hellcats.

It was noted that the communique called the American-made planes by their U.S. designation, suggesting the possibility that they may have been manned by American pilots or even launched from an American carrier. The U.S. government recently turned over to the British 40 small escort carriers without planes under lend-lease.

"Three Barracudas and one fighter were lost," the Admiralty said, adding that the bombers with their escort took off from carriers at dawn Monday, catching the Tirpitz "apparently as she was about to leave her anchorage" in the Altenfjord, just below the north cape tip of Norway.

USED SHORE BATTERIES

In addition to shrouding the Tirpitz with a smoke screen, the Germans tried to prevent the attack with fire from shore batteries emplanted on the steep cliff-sides of the fjord.

A German communique reported that 16 Allied planes were shot down when they attacked a Norwegian naval base Tuesday, suggesting a possible third blow at the Tirpitz.

The revelation that the big, elborately compartmented battleship, sister of the Bismarck which went to the bottom under the British Atlantic fleet's guns in 1941, was about to leave Altenfjord substantiated reports that the Germans had recently effected substantial repairs.

The Tirpitz was gravely damaged last Sept. 22 by by British midget submarines which slipped through the thick defences of the fjord and sent a stream of torpedoes into her sides. It was not determined whether the Germans had fully refitted her for raiding expeditions against Allied Arctic convoys or were trying to make her seaworthy for a voyage back to Germany to help oppose the western invasion.

SEND CONGRATULATIONS

King George VI and Prime Minister Churchill sent congratulations to Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, commander-in-chief of the home fleet, on the success of the new attack. The units involved were under Admiral Sir Henry R. Moore, Fraser's second in command.

D.S.O. Awarded Canadian Bomber Command Officer

By ALAN RANDAL

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—W. H. (Bill) Swelman, D.C.F., 23-year-old wing commander of the Canadian group of bomber command has been awarded the D.S.O.

This award to the Kapuskasing, Ont., airman marks the second occasion this token of gallantry has been bestowed on an officer of the Canadian bomber group. Previously it was awarded Wing Cmdr. M. M. Fleming, D.F.C., of Ottawa for outstanding leadership and service while commanding the famed Moose squadron.

Earlier, Wing Cmdr. J. (Moose) Fulton of Kamloops, B.C., later missing in action, earned the same award but this was prior to formation of the Canadian bomber group. He, too, led the Moose squadron.

Swetman commanded the Thunderbird squadron, one of the most effective of the Canadian group units. The D.S.O. was in recognition of his keenness and bravery which are apparent in his whole outlook toward flying.

Swetman has been in the midst of the high-powered offensive against Germany which started last November.

"I'd like to go flying as often as I can," he said when he completed a recent Berlin raid which was his 46th operational flight. Since then he boosted the total to 53 including trips to Berlin, Leipzig, Stuttgart, Schweinfurt, Frankfurt when the going was especially tough.

Drew's Aviation Plans "Surprise"

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, April 6.—The statement by Premier Drew in the Ontario legislature that Ontario's position in air transport development would be a major item on the agenda of the proposed Dominion-provincial conference caused surprise here. Civil aviation policy is not regarded as extending to provincial jurisdiction, though in the construction of future airports it is probable the co-operation between Dominion and provincial governments may be sought.

At present representatives of the provinces, most of them treasury officials, have been working on preparations for a Dominion-provincial conference. But the Ontario government has not sent a representative, as other provinces did at invitation of the federal government. The financial officials are assembling material, and inquiries today showed that airport construction was included in the preliminary surveys.

In the opinion of Ottawa circles, this does not mean that the conference will become a forum for discussion of aviation policy to any degree.

Latest information suggests that the conference may be postponed for some time, to permit further preparations and to accommodate some of the provinces that are shortly entering election campaigns.

Big Oats Export By Canada Seen

WINNIPEG, April 6.—(CP)—The largest export trade in Canadian oats since the First Great War was in prospect today under plans of the United States War Food Administration seeking supplies for feed-shortage areas.

Reports on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange indicated W.F.A. purchases might run as high as 22,000,000 bushels of oats, with distribution to be made from Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn.

George McIvor, chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, has confirmed that negotiations are underway with Washington authorities. He indicated the purchases might total 15,000,000 bushels.

Shipments would be made direct from western elevators with the grain transported to distributing centres in United States cars.

Railmen's Requests Soon Before Board

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—Application of 100,000 Canadian railway workers for wage increases aimed at a levelling of Canadian rate with those paid on eastern United States lines, is likely to reach a hearing before the National War Labor Board late this month, it was learned yesterday.

The case, the largest so far presented to the board, involves increases unofficially estimated to total a possible $100,000,000 a year—the equivalent of about one-half the total increases granted by the National and Regional War Labor Boards since the introduction of wartime wage control.

In addition to the 100,000 workers directly affected another 50,000 to 75,000 would probably be involved in subsequent increases if the main application is granted.

1,500 Japanese Killed in Attack On Troop Train

CHUNGKING, April 6.—(AP)—The Central News agency today quoted a Chinese eye witness as saying some 1,500 Japanese troops were killed Feb. 15 when American aircraft attacked a train near Nanking. The same man, who had escaped into Free China, said heavy casualties were inflicted on 2,000 Japanese troops aboard ships attacked by American planes near Wuhu March 4.

Points and Meat

CHICAGO, April 6.—(AP)—Ration Board 24 had meat points and meat, too, yesterday. A 100-pound pig tumbled off a passing truck and office workers penned it behind a barricade of chairs in the board office until police arrived to hold it awaiting the truck driver's return.

C.P.R. Workers Urged to Back New War Loan

MONTREAL, April 6. — "The Sixth Victory Loan which opens on April 24 has a minimum objective of $1,200,000,000, and the government has expressed the hope that subscriptions will considerably exceed this figure," said D. C. Coleman, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway in a statement issued to all officers and employees of the company in Canada.

"During the past autumn and winter," Mr. Coleman continued. "the progress of the struggle to maintain a civilized society on earth has been continuous, and steadily successful. The task of organizing and equipping the forces of the United Nations has been carried to the point at which there is every reason to believe that the scales of our preparations is adequate to meet the greatest military effort in history, while, on the Russian front, our allies have once again demonstrated their ability to win magnificent victories, even in the harsh circumstances of winter.

DEPLOY NEW FORCES

"We shall rapidly deploy new forces against the enemy, along a front which now stretches, almost continuously, from Britain, around Europe, and through the Orient, and the islands of the Pacific, to the northern extremities of Japan.

"In every theatre of this, the greatest war in human history, it is evident that the forces of the free nations are now trained and equipped to a point at which they can steadily force our enemies from the territories which they have seized.

"It remains now to support this great advance so that it may be unfaltering, all along the line.

SUSTAIN GREAT EFFORT

"We are now called upon to sustain the great effort, at the high point to which it has been developed, and it is for us to remember that on our willingness to make personal sacrifices there depends, but only our ability to send our youth fully armed to battle, but the possibility of feeding, arming and restoring the populations which we free from enemy domination," he said.

"The ability of our country to play its full part in the struggle depends on the continued willingness of our people to postpone the spending of their personal incomes. The country has no other resources than those contributed by the individual citizen, and it is absolutely necessary that these should be mobilized to the utmost both to carry on the actual struggle, and to guarantee that the nation will meet victory with its economic resources sound and strong.

"The employees of the Canadian Pacific will be provided with an organized opportunity to do their duty—an organization having been set up under the chairmanship of W. M. Neal, vice-president of the company, to co-operate with the national war finance committee in making certain that every officer and employee is given an opportunity to share in the national effort.

"I am confident that the employees of the Canadian Pacific will once again show their readiness to do their full duty," Mr. Coleman said.

Fate of Alberta Flier Uncertain Due to Reports

LETHBRIDGE, April 6.—(CP)—Sgt. Dallas Rex Robinson, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Robinson, was recently reported missing after air operations over Germany on the night of Feb. 25. Subsequently he was reported a prisoner of war in Germany, then over the week-end the family received word there had been an error, that another airman of the same name, initials and rank and similar service number, who participated in the same raid was the prisoner and that Sgt. Dallas Rex Robinson was missing still.

Yesterday word came from Ottawa that information from Germany through the International Red Cross stated Sgt. Dallas Rex Robinson had lost his life in the raid. The airman is now listed officially: "missing, believed dead."

Orient Express Route Disrupted By Guerilla Units

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—Traffic on the Ljubljana-Zagreb Railway, part of the route of the famous "Orient Express," crack pre-war train running between Western Europe and the Middle East, was suspended for 67 hours when Yugoslav Partisans destroyed two trains between Ljubujana and Zidani, 35 miles to the east, Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz reported today.

Withdraw Order For Deportation Of Mrs. Browder

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP)—A 1940 order for deportation of Mrs. Raissa Berkman Browder, Russian-born wife of the American Communist leader, Earl Browder, was withdrawn yesterday by the board of immigration appeals.

Mrs. Browder was able at a recent hearing, her third, to "dissipate the doubts" the board had previously entertained concerning her testimony that she was not a communist, it was explained.

The withdrawal of the order marked the wind-up of cases which were brought against both Browder and his wife at a time when Russia was widely regarded as a silent partner of Germany.

Fliers Unharmed As Plane Dives Into North Sea

MIDLAND, Ont., April 6.—(CP)—Sgt. Alvin J. Williams, of the R.C.A.F., in a letter received yesterday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loran Williams at their Midland Point farm, tells of a 10,000-foot dive by his plane into the North sea; and surviving "without a scratch."

"We went into a terrific spiral dive and lost 10,000 feet in no time flat. We were picked up by a fishing trawler. The whole crew emerged without a scratch," he wrote.

Williams did not say what type of plane he was in nor the number of crewmen.

City Plans Widespread Commemoration During Holy Day

Two Abandonment Notices Received

No further notices have been received by the provincial government declaring intention to abandon mines in the Edmonton area, John Crawford, chief inspector of mines, said Thursday morning. Two such notices were received from local operators on Wednesday.

Operators have announced they will be sending further notices to the government "in the next few days" regarding closing of other mines. It is claimed they cannot operate under less than a 79-cent subsidy. The Dominion government has offered a 65-cent subsidy.

Before a mine can be abandoned, the Mines Act requires that 30 days' notice should be submitted in the event of a catastrophe, and 90 days in all other cases. Consent of the minister (Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines) must be obtained before abandonment.

ANNUAL COST

The free maternity hospitalization provisions, which came into effect in Alberta on April 1, are expected to cost the government $643,000 in the present fiscal year. When the scheme was started, it was announced that while agreements with the hospitals were not signed at April 1, they would be signed within the month, after conferences had been held by officials concerned.

City Police Force Preparing for Annual Auction

Odds and Ends Must Go

Unclaimed Articles

Dr. Malcolm R. Bow, deputy minister of health, who headed a government committee which Wednesday discussed agreements covering application of free maternity hospitalization provisions to Alberta hospitals, with members of a hospitals' committee.

At home or at the office, it's clean-up time. At city police headquarters, it's spring-cleaning time, when all the odds and ends that have been gathering in the last 12 months get a dusting, in preparation for the auctioneer.

Some queer items have found their ways into headquarters since the last clearance was made, just about a year ago. Where they came from, no one knows. Who will buy them, no one cares.

There's a half-set of false teeth, and a baby carriage. There's even a fox's tail—and who in the world has use for that except a fox? Then there are some books of army gags.

Bicycles, pocket-books, purses, watches, a table cloth, a fountain pen, kiddies' hand sleighs, rolls of tar and building paper, a packsack, an overcoat, a fur-trimmed coat, a pipe wrench and two roof jacks, are among the items which will go on the auction block in a short time.

There are other things, too, which have found their ways into the police strongbox, things which are rationed and which, therefore, cannot be sold, automobile tires and tubes, for instance. There's even one tube, tire and wheel complete.

OTHER ARTICLES

Other articles which will not be sold, but which, nevertheless, are taking up storage space, are airguns, a rifle, a shotgun. There are railway tickets, passports, registration certificates and war savings stamps.

There will be another big day, soon, when bidders will be allowed to buy in that half set of molars, that baby carriage or the roof jacks. No date has yet been set, however.

Engineers Hear Technology Paper

The April dinner meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, was held in the Macdonald hotel, at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday under the chairmanship of C. W. Carry.

The subject under discussion was a memorandum submitted by Dean Young of the applied science faculty at the University of Toronto in which he advocated the establishment of institutes of technology across the country.

Dean R. S. L. Wilson read the paper with a number of comments of his own. He particularly stressed the need of vocational guidance for men leaving the armed services, and of surveys to determine how many technical men are needed in each branch.

C. W. Carry carried on the discussion giving the employers' point of view on what is needed. He also emphasized the need of surveys to determine how many technical men each branch of the industry could absorb.

Principal of the Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary, J. H. Ross, stated that very few Albertans knew that there were two similar institutes in Quebec province. The following committee was appointed to consider the matter further and consult with the Calgary and Lethbridge branches: C. W. Carry, Prof. R. M. Hardy, Dr. A. D. Hogg, B. W. Pitfield.

Latecomers May Get Ration Books

Persons who failed to call for Ration Book No. 4 during the recent distribution campaign will be permitted to take or mail the red-lettered application card, from the back of Ration Book No. 3, either to ration offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board or to their nearest local ration board. All information must be complete on the card.

C. G. McKee, regional superintendent of rationing, stated that the ration administration modified its regulation concerning late applicants because of many instances where persons, through no fault of their own, were unable to obtain ration books.

The new book will be mailed to the applicant to reach him about April 17. Formerly late applicants would only be able to obtain Ration Book No. 4 on or after April 17 from ration offices of the Board.

In the case of children under 12 years old the application card should be accompanied by the sheet of coupons used for tea or coffee in Ration Book 3, Mr. McKee stated.

Plaintiff Seeks Damages For Fire

Claim seeking $1,800 from the National Liberty Insurance Co., under a policy issued by the company for fire damage suffered when fire destroyed his Desjarlais store and residence was filed Thursday in supreme court by Hugh Calais Macdonald, K.C., on behalf of William M. Stryzaska.

The fire occurred on April 12, 1943, and the claim is made under the terms of an insurance policy for $1,800 issued by the company on Jan. 19, 1943. Total estimated loss in the fire was $3,080. It is alleged in the statement of claim that the defendant company has refused payment of the claim made by the plaintiff.

Wheels, Tires Taken

Four wheels and tires were stolen from his car while it was parked in front of his residence Wednesday night, Luther Coulbourn, 12044 79 street, complained to city police Thursday.

Recruits Needed

Sqdn. Ldr. J. C. Hackney, commanding officer of No. 3 R.C.A.F. recruiting centre in Edmonton, now chief recruiting centre for the air force in Alberta, who announced Thursday that orders have been received to enlist more youths for air crew training.

Increase Quotas For Aircrew Here

Ending a lengthy lull, during which period a considerable amount of re-adjustment has taken place in British Commonwealth Air Training plans, the R.C.A.F. has again received additional quotas for enlistment in aircrew branches at all recruiting centres, it was announced here Thursday by Sqdn. Ldr. J. C. Hackney, commanding officer of No. 3 Edmonton recruiting centre.

Young men from 18 to 28 who possess the necessary air force qualifications are assured of immediate enlistment.

Quotas for aircrew are also available at the Calgary sub air force recruiting centre.

Enlistments and medicals will be carried out as formerly for applicants residing in the Calgary recruiting area.

It is expected that the renewed demand for young men for air crew will result in a ready response.

THE QUESTION

At a meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Corps Association held Tuesday a discussion on the subject of post-war immigration was held. Do you think Canada should open its doors to the various peoples of Europe after the war?

THE ANSWERS

WILLIAM G. KENYAN, government inspector: I think the subject should be given very careful consideration. Very selective immigration would benefit the country I think, and it should be made compulsory for all immigrants to learn to speak English before they are granted citizenship.

EDDIE WIESS, restaurant proprietor: I think we should have lots of immigration after the war. I came to this country from Holland 16 years ago and I think thousands of Europeans would make good Canadian citizens. There is plenty of room for them here but I do think immigration laws of Canada should be more strict, and before European people be allowed to become citizens they should have to learn to speak English, and learn to understand the constitution and laws of this country, and what they stand for.

R.C.A.F. member: Before the government makes any move to bring in thousands of immigrants, I think it should first arrange for employment of its own people.

Miss L. Darroch Wins Ice Derby

Miss Lois Darroch, 10974 126 street, has been announced winner of the Optimist Club's Ice Derby, staged on the annual break-up of the Saskatchewan river. Miss Darroch's forecast that the river ice would go out at 3:50 p.m. on April 4, was right to the second, as the official marker placed on the river near the city power plant by the fire department, went out at that time on Tuesday.

Miss Darroch wins $250 in Sixth Victory Loan war bonds. Proceeds from the sale of tickets on the Ice Derby will go to the Optimists Club child welfare work.

Members of the committee in charge of the Derby were: Frank Boothe, Reg Easton, Louis LaFleche, Norman Parry, Ted Pardis and Clare Dowdell.

Vancouver Sailor Stranded in City

Able Seaman William Simmons, Vancouver, is stranded in Edmonton because of losing his wallet which contained a return railway ticket from Halifax to Vancouver, as well as between $40 and $50 in cash. Also in the wallet, which he told police he last had when leaving the washroom of the Y.M.C.A. early Thursday morning, were army and air force discharge papers, and navy identification card.

Simmons reported to authorities that he had just begun his leave and was on his way home. He stated that he was stranded unless the lost articles were found and returned.

Churches Arrange Services Of Deeply Religious Nature In Observance Good Friday

Services of deep solemnity in observance of mourning for the crucified Jesus Christ, and of his suffering and sacrifice, will be observed in churches throughout this city on Friday. Ever since the first Good Friday the day has been set aside for profound religious celebration and since the Global War has spread misery, destruction and suffering in all civilized countries, the observances have been made even more significant.

Two explanations of the name Good Friday have been offered. One is that it is God's Friday, and the other is that the life and death of Jesus brought Good to the world. Other names are given to the day. The Anglo - Saxons called it Long Friday and in the Greek church, and in Latin countries it is Holy Friday.

Throughout Christendom the day known as Good Friday, the Friday preceding Easter Sunday, is celebrated in memory of the Crucifixion of Christ as described in St. John's gospel.

In days before food rationing removed them from the celebration, Hot Cross buns were the especial fare of Good Friday. They were small loaves of bread, set, burnt spiced and sweetened, and with a white cross marked on their sugary brown surface.

In England vendors go, or used to go about the streets with baskets of them, shouting:

"One a penny, buns,
Two a penny, buns,
One a penny, two a penny,
Hot Cross Buns."

Here the buns were displayed in bake-shops as part of the Easter decorations.

ORIGIN OBSCURE

The origin of the Hot Cross bun is obscured by the fog of ages, but there is a theory that it belongs to ancient Greece. Cecrops, founder of Attica, offered to the Olympic gods small cakes of "boun." The word resembles "bous," the Greek term for ox, and the cakes were marked with a design shaped like an ox's horns. The early Christian Church copied the custom, but altered the name to bun, and the marking to the form of a cross.

However, while the Hot Cross buns have been removed from Good Friday observances through wartime necessity, the religious

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Mother, Daughter Do Not Always "Click"

Mothers Must Get Point of View of Teen-Age Daughter Who Cannot Accept Old Ideas in New World

There is something terribly pathetic in the desire of mothers to pal up with their teen-age daughters because their efforts so often end in frustration. When Susie was a little girl in the pinafore and pigtail stage, she told Mother everything, and Mother was as familiar with the contents of her heart and mind as she was with the things in her bureau drawers.

When Susie is grown and married, she and Mother will again be intimate friends who talk over everything together and share their most secret thoughts. But in between comes that awful, anxious, heartbreaking period for Mother in which Susie erects a barrier between them and hides behind it, and when Mother no more knows what she is thinking and doing and planning and hoping and fearing than if she were the veriest stranger.

GIRL FRIGHTENED

Often Susie, on her side of the wall, is just as anxious to be on confidential terms with Mother as Mother is with her. For all the bluff she puts up, she is frightened in this new strange land in which she finds herself and in which she does not know her way about. She would like to talk things over with Mother if she could, but she is tongue-tied when she tries to ask Mother any of the questions that are so vital to her.

There are many reasons for this. One is that mothers and teen-age daughters seldom speak the same language. Mother speaks by the book. Susie talks and thinks in the jive lingo. So they don't understand each other and can't get close together. Susie thinks all of Mother's ideas are prehistoric, and Mother wonders how she ever could have borne a child with so little sense. And there they both are.

Neither one is to blame for this state of affairs, but if Mother wants to establish an entente cordiale between them she has to come out of the state of shock in which most mothers of teen-age girls exist. Naturally Susie isn't going to tell Mother anything if Mother is going to be so horrified that she will complain to Papa, and they will cut off her allowance or keep her from going to the movies for a week to punish her. For Susie hasn't really done anything wrong. She has done something that Mother didn't do when she was her age. But she has learned her lesson. It is to keep her mouth shut. And Mother has missed her bus. Never again will she have Susie for a gossipy fellow traveller.

GET DAUGHTER'S VIEWPOINT

Then the mother who desires to be chummy with her hobbledehoy daughter, who is neither woman nor child, must get her point of view on things and adapt herself to them. She can't get Susie to accept her ideas any more than she can squeeze her into the 18-inch corset she used to wear. The code of conduct for the modern girl is roomier and sloppier, like her clothes, than it was in Mother's day.

Then Mother must handle her half-grown daughter with as much diplomacy as she would in negotiating a world peace. She must never laugh at her, because youth has no sense of humor. She must cut DON'T out of her vocabulary, and make suggestions instead of giving orders, and she must affect to believe that Susie is as sophisticated as she thinks she is.

Above all, she must respect Susie's individuality and her right to a lot of liberty and privacy. The mother who listens in on her teen-age girl's telephone conversations and opens her letters not only shuts herself out of Susie's confidences but out of her heart. For when Susie confides in Mother, it is as friend to friend, never to a cross-examiner.

Good Night, Sweet Prince

The Life & Times of John Barrymore —based on the new best seller

BY GENE FOWLER

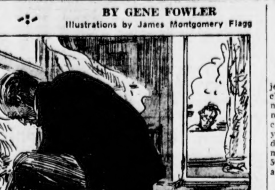

Illustrations by James Montgomery Flagg

Jack was off on a week's spree in Bombay.

He found himself in a knapsack position.

When Kelley bathed, the resourceful actor would flee.

By the middle of December—and in spite of the yogi's warning—Jack seemed almost restored to good health. He had had nothing strong to drink and was not morose.

Then one day a shipboard drinking companion called on him and he disappeared from his hotel. He was off on a week's spree. When he returned, he promised the doctor not to have another lapse but two days later he again vanished. The treatments were discontinued. Jack sailed for America and seemed very gay in the bar.

Barrymore was entering the last seven years of a lifetime. During his 60 years in Hollywood he had made $2,634,500 and spent almost all of it with lavish hand. Truly he now was in the winter of discontent. Dolores moved out of their Beverly Hills home.

In New York, Jack was removed to a hospital where he met Elaine Jacobs, a Hunter College student. She announced her name as Elaine Barrie and Jack declared her his protégee.

Dolores filed suit for a divorce, which she obtained Oct. 8, 1935. Jack pulled himself together and the following spring obtained the part of Mercutio in the production of Romeo and Juliet. He was not the star but supported Norma Shearer and the late Leslie Howard.

Returning to work after a year and eight months, Jack permitted himself to be placed in residence in a private sanitarium. The owner, Jim Kelley, became Barrymore's "guard" during the actor's months there.

Kelley was a slim, dark, rather silent chap who looked like a curator in an art museum. But he had an astonishing familiarity with oriental wrestling holds.

Barrymore, on first meeting Kelley, erroneously presumed that the quiet chap was neither strong nor energetic. Jack lunged at him. The next moment, Jack found himself in a knapsack position on Kelley's back, and dazedly on the way to a bed-room.

Barrymore's funds were getting low and occasionally he asked, "Where is all the money I made?" But he wanted no pity. It was only that bills now sailed like confetti through the air and strangely enough here was a man who wanted to owe one.

Occasionally, however, he would "escape" from Kelley and the sanitarium to show up in the night clubs. Whenever Kelley disrobed to bathe, the resourceful actor would flee.

McCoy Health Service

In our present stage of evolution it is necessary for us to spend about a third of our time in sleep. Sleep seems to be a state of self-hypnosis, during which time the body is able to rest and overcome the effect of the fatigue poisons which have accumulated during the hours of activity. Also during sleep the nerve cells are restored or recharged.

The inability to sleep may arise from purely mental causes. I have had many patients tell me that they were sleepy until they went to bed, after which they became wide awake. If a person believes that he will fall asleep as soon as his head hits the pillow, he usually will. However, there are many physical and mental causes capable of producing insomnia or sleeplessness. As a general rule, insomnia can be traced to an irritation or stimulation arising in the digestive tract.

The use of incorrect food combinations in the evening meal, leading to the formation of excessive gas is one of the principal causes of wakefulness. When this is the cause, the patient will find that such a simple measure as taking a plain warm water enema will induce almost immediate relief so that he can return to bed and fall into a sound restful slumber.

In some cases the disturbance of sleep may originate in a faulty mattress, the distraction arising from continued noise, or the habit of taking your troubles to bed with you which encourages worry and nerve tension. Very often the cause lies in not enough exercise being taken to induce a normal healthy muscular tiredness. If your work is of the sedentary type, then you will not obtain enough exercise during working hours to induce physical fatigue and you should devote the evening to physical activity. As you are already aware when you are really tired physically, you will find it as easy to go to sleep as to roll off a log. The laborer is not the individual who suffers from sleeplessness. Wakefulness is largely confined to those working with their brains and not their hands.

The psychic causes of insomnia have not been appreciated in the past but the influence of mental or emotional causes upon sleeplessness is now better understood. The patient who is dissatisfied or discontented during waking hours will find it hard to relax enough to sleep soundly. The cure in such cases rests upon adjusting the emotional life and any conflict which may exist must be overcome by means of psychotherapy.

Sleep is a normal process and occurs almost automatically in the individual of sound health. If you find it difficult to sleep at night, you must realize that the habits which are not good which you are encouraging while you are awake, are the true explanation of your trouble. It is probably not so much what happens during the night which keeps you awake, as it is what happens during the day time. Adjust your daytime habits, and your sleeping habits must inevitably improve.

I have never known of a case of insomnia that could not be cured when the patient uses a combined treatment for removing stomach and intestinal irritation, increases his exercise, and learns the value of good suggestions. The next time you are bothered with insomnia, take an enema, then return to bed and imagine that your arms and legs are very heavy. If you can successfully imagine that your arms and legs are dead weights, you will fall asleep within a short time. Occasionally the use of the warm bath just before retiring is helpful in inducing a relaxed state which encourages sleep.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

COOKING MADE EASY FOR BRITISH WAAFS

LONDON—(CP)—The R.A.F. has made a start on converting its uniformed WAAFs into push-up housewives. On air stations throughout England, off duty classes in cookery are being organized to teach the girls who now man control towers and operations rooms how to plot a course in a kitchen. The R.A.F. educational officers and the home economics teachers who have organized the classes say that the girls turn to cooking, ironing and sewing as a relief from service duties.

inched pairs. The only two-time winners in the tournament were Charles Lembeck and Lawrence Blum of New York, who won the non-Master pairs, and playing with Edward Lembeck and Francis Begley, won the commercial and industrial team-of-four championship.

This was Charles Lembeck's first major tournament, and he certainly gave a good account of himself. Here is one of the interesting hands he played in the commercial and industrial team event. He handled a difficult and unusual contract with expert skill.

The opening lead was won in dummy with the ace of hearts and a low diamond was led. West won and returned a club, which rode to South's Jack. Now a trump was led to dummy's ace and a low spade returned. East played low, Lembeck played the eight, and the king was forced to win. West returned a club, dummy won, another round of trumps was drawn, then Lembeck continued to lead diamonds. East ruffed but the contract was safe.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON — Looking back over my trip to South America, I want to tell you today about my brief visit to Dutch Guiana and my trip from there to Brazil.

My few hours in Dutch Guiana were all spent at Zandrey field, where we landed. This is about 30 miles from the city of Paramaribo, and I think it must be a rather lonely place, though they tried to give our men stationed there good recreational facilities.

I was sorry our schedule did not give us time to go into the city, near which we have a fairly large military establishment. There we have a U.S.O. which is visited by the men from Zandrey field whenever they can get in, but is primarily used by our servicemen stationed nearer town.

His Excellency the Dutch governor and a number of officials came out to greet me and went with me to visit all the various field activities. Afterwards, there were some formal ceremonies at which a few of our men paraded with some Dutch units. I was particularly interested to meet the head of the Dutch WACS in this colony and to see some of their installations.

After lunch, we took off for Belem, Brazil. For hours we flew over dense jungle and finally over the mouth of the Amazon, which has formed many islands because of the silt which makes it a muddy river. The Para river, which we crossed just before landing, is really just the southern mouth of the Amazon.

I was impressed by the difficulties which have been overcome in the building of facilities in the jungle. It grows up so fast and encroaches on cleared land so quickly that it requires constant vigilance to keep it down, and yet, around our military areas, they have even managed to do very efficient malaria-control work. There is comparatively little illness among our troops and the climate must be fairly healthy in spite of the humidity.

It was early autumn there, since we had crossed the equator, and it was the end of the rainy season. During the rainy season, it rains six or seven times a day; at other times, only about once a week.

Our men there are homesick, of course, but many of them told me that they were much impressed by the possibilities that the country offered for development. One of them told me he felt sure there were rich iron ore deposits and that anything we grew in the United States would grow there almost continuously the year round. Perhaps this is one of the areas where displaced populations can settle in the future.

At Zandrey field in Dutch Guiana, it seemed a little odd to be walking along a path made of material which is rich in Bauxite, and the governor told me afterwards that that particular material was their greatest contribution to the war effort.

REGULAR NIP KEEPS TINY BABY HEALTHY

BATON ROUGE, La.—(CP)—Baby Betty Sue Beeson, believed to be Baton Rouge's smallest baby and certainly its tiniest "imbiber," hasn't been affected by the national liquor shortage.

Betty Sue weighed two pounds and three ounces at birth. For a month she had allergic seedings of milk and whisky-and-water—and; according to hospital nurses liked the latter better. Now she weighs nearly four pounds.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther W. Beeson is still in the hospital's oxygenarium, but is expected to be taken home when she reaches six pounds, probably early in 1944.

QUEEN ELIZABETH PRAISES MALTESE

LONDON.—(CP)—The bombblasted island fortress of Malta is close to the heart of Queen Elizabeth.

"My thoughts are constantly on Malta," she told a survivor of the Maltese Blitz at the London headquarters of the Victoria League Colonial War Service.

"My people will be heartened by Your Majesty's message," said the man, Dr. C. Borg.

At the centre the Queen met and talked with service people and civilians from Cyprus, Ceylon, Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Fiji, and Mauritius.

"This will be something to tell the people back home," said a black-skinned sergeant-pilot from Nigeria.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It's hard to make the vast subject of money understandable to a child without either minimizing or magnifying its importance. The necessity to attempt explanation came to a mother when her three-year-old said wonderingly, "Why do you give the ashman Daddy's money? And why do you give Sally pennies when she stays with Neddy and me?"

The child must learn that everything tangible has some money value. Someone must buy and pay for it. He can understand that his toys may be gifts but sometone has paid for them. When he destroys them he destroys a money value.

Where the money comes from is through work. If not the work of his father, then of grandfather or great-grandfather, but someone has exchanged work for money somewhere, sometime.

The complication arrives when the child wants to exchange his work for money. Then there must be a further explanation that while his work has value it may not, in the home, be a money value. In the home everyone works for the benefit of everyone else.

The father works for the money, the mother works in order to make the home livable for all of them. A good meal, a well-made bed, clean, sparkling dishes and glasses and silver, a clean porch, a furnace that works well, these are all benefits everyone enjoys, though one may accept the obligation to perform such tasks as his share of the household load.

Money does come into the picture in a slightly different way. Just as the tasks are shared, so is the money the father earns. It belongs to each of them, in some proportion, as his share in the family income. He gets that share in many different ways, in clothes and food and shelter, but he also gets some share of the actual money so that he may learn how to use this universal medium of exchange for work.

It's a vast subject but we do well to think clearly of it so that our practices may not be unnecessarily confusing to the child. Then he knows that the ashman does not work for us, but works for money, the caretaker ditto. While he, doing the same tasks, may get only his regular allowance as a member of the family. (This is for you, Mrs. J. J.)

Readers in General.—I am sincerely appreciative when readers want to help other readers, but there is no room in the column for an exchange of letters. Many persons wanted to help Mrs. H. D. Y., whose baby has eczema. All of their suggestions are to be found in the leaflet on that subject I sent her but the suggestions of advertised products cannot be mentioned in the column. I hope everyone understands why this is.

Many people believe that the flower commonly called "Touch-me-not" is so-called because it is poisonous. But the truth is that this is quite an innocent flower, indeed, it is classed as a medicinal plant, and its forbidding name is said to have derived from the fact that the seed ovelopes will explode on being touched. However, even this is not true unless the seeds are very ripe and ready to explode anyway. "Touch-me-if-you-wish" would be a better name; or "touch-me-and-see-me-burst"—but why "touch-me-not"?

British Women Go to Battle

By MARGARET ECKER

LONDON, April 6.—(CP)—In the steps of Florence Nightingale, British women in white are following their men into battle and are serving and dying wherever British soldiers are risking their own lives.

Dame Katharine Jones, matron-in-chief of Queen Alexandra's Imperial Military Nursing Service, announced in London that 102 British army nursing sisters have been killed under fire; 42 are missing in Malaya; 14 are prisoners at Hong Kong.

Nursing sisters, she stated, are with the Allied forces on the Anzio beachhead. When the hospital ship St. David was sunk off Anzio and several nurses lost their lives, others distinguished themselves in caring for their patients aboard the sinking ship.

There are British nurses in Madagascar, Seychelles, Mauritius, India, Ceylon, Egypt, Iraq, Persia, East and West Africa. In the wilds of Abyssinia sisters made a 200-mile trek in a lorry to bring medical care to a detachment of British soldiers.

Guides Send $500 Overseas

By MARGARET ECKER

LONDON, April 5.—(CP)—A lost child of occupied Europe who has been driven from its home in fear is given love and kindness, nourishing food and clothing for the first time in a Girl Guides' camp, will be able to thank in some small part Canadian Girl Guides.

More than $500 has been sent by Canadian Guides to the Guides International Service in Britain. This has been added to a fund which now has reached more than $55,000 and will be used to train and equip teams of older Guides in welfare work in Europe as it is reoccupied by Allied armies.

WOMEN TO TRAIN

Australia, South Africa and New Zealand are sending women to Britain to train for this work and Mrs. John Corbett of Kingston, Ont., deputy chairman of the Canadian Guide Council, is here to study what Canada will do.

Two teams of 30 British women each are ready even now—trained, packed, inoculated. They are prepared to leave Britain at a few hours notice to go into a liberated country and establish civilian first aid posts, soup kitchens, and to organize camps where both adults and children can be fed, clothed and cared for until sent back to their own villages.

Edmonton Girl Back From S.A.

By KAY FORD

"It is wonderful to be in Canada, it is wonderful to be home", said Nursing Sister Emily Mayhew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Mayhew, 10611 104 street, who is back in Canada after two and a half years with the South African Military Nursing Service.

Miss Mayhew, a graduate of the Royal Alexandra hospital in Edmonton, was one of the 300 Canadian nurses who volunteered to staff South African hospitals, has returned to Canada to enlist in the R.C. A.M.C. and hopes to go to the battle fronts. "I want to be in the battle", she declared.

SOUTH AFRICANS KIND

The South Africans were so very kind to us, Miss Mayhew said and South African soldiers were such fine patients and so good to the nurses.

"I think I know South Africa as well as the natives", said Miss Mayhew, who has a suntan which made this reporter envious in the white fogginess and snow of Thursday morning. On her last leave the nurse travelled all through Transkei, native territory between East London and Durban. She went through Swaziland, the native section of South Africa, and travelled through Zululand to Capetown.

It's fun to ride in a rickshaw Miss Mayhew said, which she did in Durban.

During the time spent in South Africa the nursing sister was stationed at Springfield hospital, Durban; Beatrix street hospital, Pretoria; at Bonderwater, and at Baragwanath, seven miles from Johannesburg.

SCENIC BEAUTY

The highlight of the nurse's stay in South Africa was the sight of the Kango Caves at Utshorn, which are breath-taking in their scenic beauty. She also visited the Slinkwood forest at Knysna.

While the climate is fine and the country beautiful the nurse missed the four seasons of Canada and especially the snow. When the reporter bemoaned the fact that on April 6 the street had a good covering of snow, Miss Mayhew declared "I love it and how good it is to see snow again."

She was homesick at Easterlime, which comes in the fall in South Africa, and of Christmas said, "I did not enjoy Christmas when it was 90 degrees in the shade as much as here at home."

A pleasant surprise awaited Nursing Sister Emily Mayhew when she was met at the station not only by her parents but by her sister, Pilot Officer Evelyn Mayhew, Kathleen Mayhew, R.C.A.F. (W.D.), who is stationed in Calgary, and was given special leave for this occasion.

noon to return to her home in Calgary. She was also present at the wedding of Miss Betty Smith and Sgt. Pilot Andrew B. Strang, R.C.A.F., which took place last Friday.

CANADIAN NURSES RETURN FROM SOUTH AFRICA

After two and a half years with the South African military nursing service, these four nurses are back home. Left to right, Nursing Sister Anne West Derry, Collingwood, Ont., a bride of two months, who will return to Cape Town after her visit home; Nursing Sister Madeline Steinhoff, St. Thomas, Ont.; Nursing Sister Elizabeth de St. Remi, Kingston, Ont., who will shortly marry a Canadian airman she nursed in a South African hospital, and Nursing Sister Dorothy Stevens, Erieau, Ont. These were among 300 Canadian nurses who volunteered to serve in South African military hospitals. They returned to Canada with 11 others, of whom the majority will enlist in the R.C.A.M.C. for service in Britain.

Britons Have Good Health

By HELEN BANNERMAN

OTTAWA, April 6—(CP)—Miss Florence Horsbrugh, Conservative member of the British House of Commons and parliamentary secretary to the minister of food, said Wednesday in an interview that the health of Britons after 4½ years of war was "surprisingly good," "but that the people were all a bit tired.

"Maternal and infant mortality rates are the lowest we have ever had," she said. "The infant rate is down to 49 per 1,000 this year and the maternal rate is 2.47 per 1,000 last year, the last figure we have."

Miss Horsbrugh, in Canada for a brief visit, said she was not concerned about reports of Britain's falling birth rate.

"We have had 114,113 babies born in our emergency maternity homes and they were jolly healthy babies, too," she said.

Combining a holiday with a survey of Canada's problems and progress in public health, Miss Horsbrugh said she was delighted at the chance to visit Canada.

HEALTH SIMILAR

"The health of our two countries is very similar. We both have had an increase in tuberculosis and venereal disease and we have been fighting it the same way—through education and the co-operation of the people."

British people have a warm feeling for Canada and the other Dominions because of their help with clothing, food and furniture when Britain needed them most, said Miss Horsbrugh. The Canadian Junior Red Cross sent many children's nurseries and kept them supplied with toys, clothes, funds and jam.

EVACUATING CHILDREN

Miss Horsbrugh later told a luncheon meeting of a service club (Lions) of the problems Britain had met in evacuating children, caring for wounded and homeless and preventing a decline in health.

Another problem was a horde of refugees from all parts of the world, including many Britons who had been living abroad.

"It appears to be an impossible situation," she said, "but because things were well organized we found room for them all."

Swiss Airwoman Excellent Cook

"Switzerland" is the name on the shoulder badge of a member of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) who is now stationed at Rockcliffe and Ottawa's airwoman Gertrude Fry.

Miss Fry is a cook in the Women's Division, stationed at Vulcan, Alta. She was born in Lucerne, Switzerland, and when she was four years of age came directly to Peace River with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Fry.

The airwoman enlisted in Edmonton in September, took her basic training at Rockcliffe and later was posted to Guelph, Ont. She enjoys her work and from remarks made by her father's friend, Arnold Sulper, an Edmonton mechanist, also from Lucerne, the girls at the air force station like Gertrude's cooking. Her mother has taught her some famous Swiss dishes.

Miss Fry has a brother, Sgt. Ferdinand Fry, who is with the 5th Canadian Army Brigade in Italy.

Beauty Expert From New York, London a Guest in Edmonton

"The average woman does not know what type of skin she has, dry, oily or normal. The art of makeup is to look natural, not artificial," Miss Ellen Perry of New York and London told a reporter in an interview Wednesday.

Miss Perry is beauty advisor for Barbara Gould, a cosmetic company which has salons in leading cities from Cape Breton, N.S., to Vancouver, B.C. She studied skin in London, Eng., in 1936, and has been with the Barbara Gould firm for 15 years. In Montreal the firm has a gala salon, where Miss Perry holds beauty classes. She also runs all the Babara Gould beauty schools in Canada.

According to Miss Perry the beauty business is conceded to be one of the greatest morale builders in these troubled times. Women have taken over a big responsibility in the present struggle and psychiatrists maintain that cosmetics serve to counteract fatigue and increase efficiency among women. Britain's Supply Minister's chief medical officer says: "Make-up is good for health because it makes women happy. When a nation's women are healthy, happy and well groomed, the morale of its men is at high tide."

In Edmonton, owing to its dry climate, 90 per cent of the women have very dry skins, Miss Perry said, and they will be glad that the Barbara Gould treatment is simple, its theme being mildness, blandness and simplicity in using. There are particularly soft tones for the skin, she said."

It is a known fact that cosmetics guard against dermatitis, Miss Perry said. She has lectured to the personnel of the four largest defence plants in Canada and given radio addresses, and declares that cosmetics pay large dividends as it is her personal experience that a balanced cosmetic treatment will do wonders for any skin.

FINEST CHEMISTS

Miss Perry says in her opinion there is no such thing as an all-purpose cream. It is impossible for one cream to be a cleanser, powder base, foundation and nourishing cream all in one because a cleansing cream must be fine enough to penetrate the pores and float foreign matter, such as dust and dirt from the pores. Barbara Gould company employs the finest research chemists to make their creams.

Miss Perry is a visitor in the city until Saturday evening, a guest at the Macdonald hotel, and will be glad to meet Edmonton women at T. Eaton Company, where she will outline a short, free of charge, for each individual.

Mayor to Speak in Squadron's Praise

Exploits of the City of Edmonton squadron, recently adopted by the city during the resolution of city council, will be outlined in a broadcast over CFRN on Friday starting at 8:15 p.m. Mayor John W. Fry will participate in the program on behalf of the city.

Since the City of Edmonton squadron was formed it has been credited with the destruction of 56 enemy planes, the 50th plane being destroyed in a sortie over enemy territory. According to a pilot taking part in that raid, a Dornier 217 was destroyed on the ground, and a Heinkel 111 and a Gotha 242 met the same fate, while the intruder planes shot down in the air a Junkers 34 and a Junkers 52, as well as "some other little biplane." This mission took place on March 21, the first day of spring.

Squadron-Leader Lisson, Edmonton, believes that the City of Edmonton Squadron's record on that day has never been surpassed by any other formation.

Seventeen Edmonton men are in the "Intruder Squadron," and their main purpose is to "intrude" in enemy country, causing as much confusion and damage as possible.

Offices to Close

All provincial government offices will be closed Friday, Saturday and Monday of the Easter week-end. They will re-open at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday morning, April 11.

Missionary Claims Japanese Anxious to Fight for Canada

"The attitude of the Canadian-born Japanese is that 'we are Canadians', and so many of them, especially the younger people, have asked me why they are not allowed to be in the Canadian Army because we want to fight for our country'," Miss Jessie Gillespy, a member of the Evangelistic Band of British Missionaries, said here Thursday.

In Edmonton on a special tour of centres sponsored by the Pentecostal churches, Miss Gillespy, who speaks the Japanese fluently, has been conducting services at Japanese evacuee camps.

Miss Gillespy left Japan in 1940, after eight years of missionary work there, with 17 other missionaries and their children and remained in Canada instead of returning to England.

As far as the older Japanese, born in Japan, are concerned, she said that for the most part they have never learned English and "very few of them are Christians."

However, she emphasized, the younger generation has no desire "to leave Canada, they love the country and want to stay here and if they were sent back to Japan, would be like fish out of water, without any feeling or sympathy for the Japanese way of life which would be foreign to them."

She said that many of the Canadian-born Japanese on the coast, who are Christians, are Sunday School teachers in the camps and whenever she visits the various camps, there is always a large attendance of the young people at the gospel meetings.

Miss Gillespy, who is celebrating her 42nd year of missionary service this year, pointed out that she left before the real trouble started.

WAR INEVITABLE

"However, even then," she continued, "we had known for some time that the war was inevitable as we watched and felt the power of the military clique and the Japanese emperor slowly crushing all freedom.

"Even before our evacuation we had been forbidden to teach or have any control of the teaching and were also forbidden to receive any funds for our work."

Miss Gillespy said that she believed that "the true Christians in Japan are still carrying on their belief although to what extent, we do not know."

The Japanese people, she said, had long been faced with the problems of overcrowding, lack of cultivatable farmland, volcanoes and over-industrialization.

GREATEST MISTAKE

"The greatest mistake made in Japan," she said, "was the over-emphasis laid on education without a Christian background, which gave them only a veneer of western civilization."

She said that on the whole she thought Canada "has done magnificently" by the Japanese evacuees.

Miss Gillespy said that when the missionaries left Japan, the dock was black with friends and Christians who had come to see them off and to ask them to please return when the war was over.

Old Man Winter Returns to City

Old Man Winter seemingly wanted to remind Edmontonians that they were not safely rid of him yet, when after a week or so of beautiful spring weather, he brought another snowfall last night. Snow which was very light began to fall at 6:30 on Thursday, continuing until 2:21 this morning and leaving .08 of an inch of snow on the ground.

Temperatures were considerably cooler with a maximum yesterday of 38 degrees above zero and an overnight low of 26. Official reading at 8:30 a.m. Thursday was still 26 degrees but indications were of warmer temperature today.

Heavy fog enveloped the city Thursday morning. The fog began at 4:40 a.m. and increased in density, giving a wet clammy atmosphere.

Forecast for today is "partly cloudy with moderating temperatures."

War Activities Pictured in Railway Report

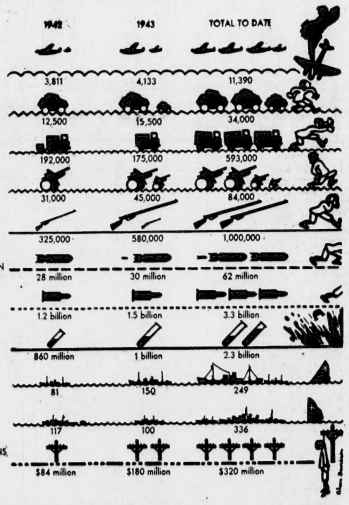

This photo-montage, reproduced from the annual report of the Canadian National Railways presented to the House of Commons, illustrates some of the many war activities of the National Eystem. Depicted here are: Transportation of heavy war materials, troop transport, shipbuilding, maintenance of military aircraft, manufacture of naval guns and artillery mounts, and the company's war record on the seas. Canadian National ships, converted into cruisers, are serving with the Royal Canadian Navy, and many other vessels operated by the company are transporting war cargoes. "Our objective, as in other war years, was to place the full strength of our manpower and facilities behind the war effort of the United Nations," R. C. Vaughan, chairman and president, said in the report. "To this end all our energies have been directed." The report showed record gross receipts of $440,615,955 in 1943. The operating ratio for the year was the best in the Railway's history, being 73.64 per cent as compared with 76.93 per cent in 1942, and 81.99 per cent in the peak peacetime year of 1928.

New Army Show

Nina Beatteay, Saint John, N.B., is a featured dancer. A cast of 150 is being assembled to be divided into four units, which will tour army camps in Canada.

Canada's War Production Record

The actual value of production often increased more than the figures indicate. Owing to larger planes produced in 1943, the value of this production increased by 50 per cent. Although output of mechanical transport and escort ships declined, the value of each increased, motor transport by 20 per cent and escort vessels by 75 per cent. New and more costly trucks were produced and larger escort vessels came from the yards.

Shotpistol

U.S. airmen, forced down in the jungle or at sea, won't have to stare at starvation's face for long. Reason is new .45-caliber pistol that shoots a cartridge similar to a shotgun shell with an effective pattern of 30 inches at 40 feet. It's intended to shoot birds in the jungle and gulls at sea. Glenn C. Garrison, technician of Remington Arms, Bridgeport, Conn., examines pistol and cartridges above.

Sub-Zero Sport Preps Airmen For Combat

Tackles are safe in the deep snow on this R.C.A.F. "duty fitness" training station high in the Laurentians where aircrew graduates get their final workout before going to overseas battlefronts. Outdoor sports even in the coldest weather occupy a major part of the training program in which orthodox physical "jerks" are held to a minimum. Fresh air and exercise send the average food consumption of each man up almost 50 per cent within a week after his arrival. Enthusiastic? . . . Believe it or not, 48-hour leave passes for week-ends in Montreal are often flatly refused.

A Sleepy Boy and His Dog Make a Touching Picture

Weary after his long trek to the Los Angeles city pound to find his dog, Laddie, 11-year-old James Roy Byrd fell asleep on a table in a newspaper office with Laddie by his side. Jimmy left his dog with a neighbor who sent it to the pound. He then walked all day to get him back and was found wandering down a street by a reporter, who took him back to the office. Jimmy's mother is a war worker. His father was killed in action recently.

United States Army Air Forces Choir Sings Stainer's Crucifixion

Sir John Stainer's oratorio The Crucifixion was sung at McDougall United Church Wednesday night as part of Easter observances, by the United States Army Air Forces Chapel Choir. It will be repeated at the chapel on Friday.

The spacious auditorium was well-filled as the procession of choristers and others wended its way down the aisle and into the choir loft.

The Crucifixion is a meditation on the sacred passion of the Holy Redeemer for two solo voices (tenor and bass) and chorus, and interspersed with hymns to be sung by the congregation. The words were selected and written by the Rev. J. Sparrow Simpson and the music was composed by Sir John Stainer.

Ever since it was written in 1887, The Crucifixion has been one of the most popular of all Easter oratorios.

Such parts as God So Loved the World, Fling Wide the Gates, Is It Nothing to You? Not in Thy Majesty and others enjoy a whole-hearted reception whenever and wherever heard throughout the Christian world.

FEATURED SINGERS

Among the featured singers in the chapel choir were Evelyn Wetmore and Helen Walker, sopranos; Dorothy Humphries and Alice Gordon, contraltos; Lt. John A. Munro, A. O. Wetmore and Charles Hosford, tenors; Lt. Earl V. Mead, Pfc. W. F. Mitty and Donovan Wensel, basses.

The accompanist was Mrs. J. E. I. Hardy.

Assisting were: artist, Cpl. Arthur Whaley; ushers Cpl. and Mrs. Ben A. Williams, Jean Lyons and Sgt. Ross B. Copenhaver; programs Cpl. George Weber nad Cpl. Howard Wagnon. A U.S.A.A.F. photographer was present.

Musical director of the performance was Pfc. James S. Hendriks, who at Christmas, directed the same organization in a performance of Handel's Messiah. Pfc. Hendricks merits warm praise for his work. He produced a commendable balance of tone, and his nuances were finely conceived and deftly executed. At all times his singers were pliable and responsive to his indicated desires.

In addition to his duties as conductor, he also played the musical interlude, the Procession to Calvary as a violin solo, with organ accompaniment.

The Rev. Dr. A. K. McMinn, minister of McDougall church, and Capt. J. R. Cox, chaplain of the U.S. A.A.F. took part in the processional and recessional and in the prayers.

The performance opened with the singing of God Save the King, and The Star-Spangled Banner.

Director

Pfc. James S. Hendricks, conductor of the United States Army Air Forces Chapel Choir here, who led his singers through a performance of Sir John Stainer's oratorio The Crucifixion at McDougall United church Wednesday night. The performance will be repeated at the U.S.A.A.F. chapel on Friday.

Little Theatre Scores Success In Spring Play

The supreme love that can exist between a small boy and his aged grandfather summarizes the theme of "On Borrowed Time," which had its opening performance Wednesday night in Westglen High School auditorium. By Paul Osborn, the play was produced to excellent advantage by The Edmonton Little Theatre which has scored a number of other hits with plays this year.

A newcomer to the Edmonton stage, little Arlene Howarth stole the show. She played the part of the small boy, Pud, and her father, Farnham Howarth was featured as Gramps, or Julien Northrup, the old grandfather. They make up a team which Edmonton drama lovers are looking forward to seeing together again. Throughout the entire play Arlene neither forgot a line nor mispronounced a word. She acted with gifted naturalness. The same can be said of her father.

ENTIRE ACTION

The entire action of the play took place in the living room and the backyard of the Northrup home, and playing foremost part in the story was an old tree, beautiful with its spreading boughs, which Gramps cast a spell upon. Anybody climbing the tree could not get down until Gramps wished it, and in the end the scheming old man trapped death in the person of Mr. Brink, played by Gordon Ferguson. As a grand finale, Mr. Brink claimed both grandfather and child, who it was proved, no man could part. Gramps and little Pud found out that death was not so bad after all.

Others in the cast were: Mrs. E. M. Langford, as Nellie Northrup, or Granny; Margaret Emery as Marcia; Ruby Greenwood as Demetria Riffle; Richard Tessier, a young boy; George Cook as a workman; Tom Goodlake as Dr. Evans; Franklin Bennett, Pilbeam; Woodrow W. Gulledge, Grimes; and William R. Pangle as the Sherrif.

Don Caporaso, assisted by Constance Keegan, was the able director, and others assisting to make the play a success were Jack Unwin, Norma deBruijn, Martha McFarlane, Gwen Seller, Lyn Morris, Ansel Smith and George Day.

The play will again be produced Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the school.

Demand Is Heavy For Export Wheat

WINNIPEG, April 6—(CP)—Increased demand for export wheat featured trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange, while rye futures moved irregularly in a moderately active session.

United States Commodity Credit Corporation purchased 5,000,000 bushels of wheat, while shippers and exporters were making offerings, estimated at 3,000,000 bushels, to cover loading of American boats expected at the lakehead during the week-end. United Kingdom buyers also took a moderate amount of wheat.

Rye futures, after a weak opening, advanced at mid-session on good American support, but later declined. At the close prices were ¼ cent lower to ⅛ higher with May at $1.31¾.

Small Declines In Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, April 6—(AP)—Favorable weather for the development of the winter wheat crop and reports that efforts will be made to import 20,000,000 bushels of Canadian oats by May 15, combined to create a little selling in grain futures today. Declines were confined to minor fractions in a quiet trade.

The market lacked buying orders, which traders attributed to the fact that the board will be closed tomorrow, Good Friday, with only the short Saturday session intervening before the week-end. Local traders were not inclined to make new commitments in European war and political development view of the possibility of important ments.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ½ lower, oats were unchanged to ⅛ barley contracts were off ⅜-1 cent. lower, rye was down ⅛-⅜. Deferred
